Foreword

RETROSPECT upon the scholastic year is possible through the agency of a University Annual. The latter has, therefore, a twofold purpose: To allow during odd and leisure moments of future days recollections and memories of the various events and friendships and, secondly, to have such moulded into permanent and lasting history.

But in the 1930 Blue-Jay it is the aim that this retrospect be more extensive even though the unified theme of the book is Progress.

Back into those crude
but romantic, hazardous yet adventurous days before the time of our wonderful school and when this surrounding country was undeveloped we turn for the seat and inspiration of our theme, to the advent and activity of the Creightons. Every step that these empire builders took is intimately woven into this, our school, which bears their name. Considerable illustration throughout the book is all symbolic of events concerning their achievements.

It is with the hope, therefore, that the history of the current year shall be only incidental and that some new reason may be found for knowing and loving better the founders and builders of Creighton and that a greater University may result, that we have selected as the motif of the 1930 Blue-Jay,
"Progress."

Administration

VARIOUS activities occupied the earlier years of the lives of Edward and John Creighton — there were the covered wagon days, river-boating and overland freighting—but it was the construction and introduction into the new and recently developed lands of the infant invention of the times, the telegraph, which ultimately provided their entry into other activities.

In seeking the new country these pioneers had their share of trouble with the hostile Indians. In their freighting and likewise in the construction of their various telegraph lines the two Creighton brothers found the Redmen to be a considerable menace.

REVEREND WILLIAM H. AGNEW, S. J.

President of the University

President's Message

THE theme of your Annual is Progress. It pictures to you the development that has been continual from the days of the Covered Wagon to the advent of the Airplane. You also have made progress during the years you have spent at Creighton. You have made this progress because you have availed yourselves of the opportunities and facilities which have been made possible for you of the present generation by those valiant men, educators and missionaries, self-sacrificing heroes who braved the toils and difficulties of the Covered Wagon Era to bring civilization and culture to the West. Creighton has been for you a cherishing mother who has striven by means of her curriculum, her teachers, her student organizations and all extra-curricular activities, to instill into your hearts an ardent love of God, of Country, of Church, of your Fellow Man. She has endeavored to prepare you for the service of mankind. She has watched you develop into learned, high-minded and honorable men and citizens. In her moral and religious training she has aimed always at building your conscience for the right fulfilment of your civil, social and religious duties, and to this end she has given you instruction in the principles of religion which form the only solid basis of virtue and morality.

Seniors, it is not without a feeling of pride that we send you forth to take your places in the world of business, education, and the professions. You have merited well, and your Alma Mater honors you in your graduation. Go forth, bearing your responsibilities. May you carry peace and happiness and success into the lives of all those whom you shall serve, and may God's blessings be upon you always.

The Board of Regents

IN the background of all the accomplishments and progress of the University, little known to the student body but powerful in this direction and help, are the Board of Governors of Creighton.

This Board is representative of the backing that the University has among the outsiders of the school. It is composed of some of the most prominent and successful business men of Omaha and the mid-west and as a consequence they remain a potent factor in the success of Creighton. They are ambassadors for the school to the outside world.

This group, though always busy in their own personal capacities, are willing and painstaking in their efforts to establish the name of Creighton more firmly in the citizens' mind. Through their various business connections they have added much to the University's progress as a growing institution.

The roster of the Board includes: The Rev. William H. Agnew, S. J., President of the University; William J. Coad, president, Omaha Flour Mills Company; Frank J. Burkley, president, Burkley Envelope and Printing Company; Fred Hamilton, vice president, Omaha National Bank; Charles T. Kountze, vice president, First National Bank.

Fred Hamilton — Frank J. Burkley — William F. Coad

Rev. William H. Agnew, S. J. — Charles F. Kountze

The Board of Trustees

THE guiding hand of all University connections, both educational and in business, is the Board of Trustees, composed of some of the most prominent members of the faculty and administrative officers of Creighton.

These men, long tested through actual service to Creighton, are the real powers of the institution. The future and present success is vested in these individuals and not once have they failed to raise the name of Creighton higher among the great schools and colleges of the country. They represent all the different departments of the school and a perfect harmony has been established as the result of their many and varied efforts.

Headed by the Rev. William H. Agnew, S. J., President of Creighton, the Board consists of: The Rev. A. F. X. Esterman, S. J., the Rev. Thomas J. Smith, S. J., the Rev. William J. Corboy, S. J., the Rev. Francis Cassilly, S. J., and Edward F. Leary, Legal Adviser of the Board.

Administrative Officers

THE Officers of Administration at Creighton are representative of the entire factulty. Their scope of activity embraces the student welfare and conduction of all affairs of the Univrsity, from the Athletic Department to the University Library.

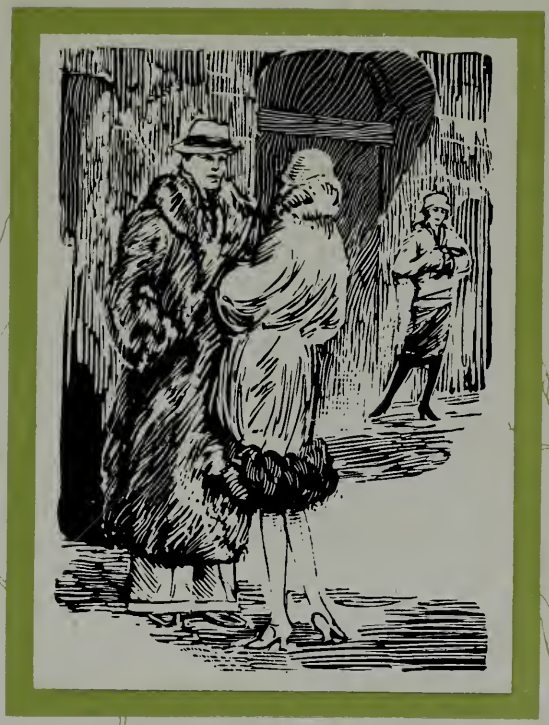

As representative of the student body, the Rev. J. A. Herbers, S. J., Dean of Men, is the most influential factor of the group, with the interests of the student forever at heart. Known by everyone, the advice and counsel of Father Herbers is always heeded and welcomed. The Rev. A. F. X. Esterman, S. J., Treasurer of Creighton, is a man who is always anxious to help the student in financial difficulties, as well as keeping a sharp outlook over all University funds.

The Athletic Department is represented by the Rev. W. J. Corboy, S. J., President of the Athletic Board, and A. A. Schabinger, Director of Athletics.

M. Isabelle Keyser is the Bursar of the Univrsity, and Miss Clare McDermott the Registrar. Lucille Reynolds directs the University Library. The Rev. E. P. Mullaney, S. J., is the Director of St. John's Hall.

College of Arts and Sciences

THE close of this scholastic term marks the end of the fifty-first year of continuous service of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. It would be a hazard to indulge in a retrospect of those years. To do so would draw a merited complaint from many an Alumnus who could justly instance more than one important omission. Rather, let us accept the glorious heritage, and possessed of its spirit, look to the future for a larger expansion of the heritage with its privileges and its prestige.

Fifty years ago, the esteemed Founders, Edward and Mary, John and Emily Creighton, planned that the students of the College should be recruited from all ranks of society. The students came. And who will not say that through these students, Creighton established itself as a potent factor in the development of the West. Then, and in the succeeding years, it invited the sons of the pioneers to the uplands of learning and the pride in its achievement is surely pardonable.

The bachelors' degree is no longer an adequate testimony of completed work. By it the lower levels of scholarship have been attained, but the heights are calling to the ambitious. Graduate study with its specialization and research beckons the undergraduate onward and upward. The sons of Creighton must become the leaders of American thought and the directors of the Greater America. They must contribute their share to raise the intelligence of the people, produce a few of the great leaders of tomorrow and add their quota to the sum of human knowledge.

REV. JOSEPH C. FLYNN, S. J., Dean.

HARRY F. FORE
Acting Dean of the Graduate School

Continued progress and expansion has marked the College of Arts and Sciences during the last year, the fifty-second in its history. Considered as the heart of the University, the Arts College, which was the first of the many benefactions of the Creighton family, was established in 1878. The original Arts College building at Twenty-fifth and California streets is still standing and comprises the middle section of the present College of Arts and Sciences. It contains the Offices of Administration, the home of the Jesuit Faculty, the Creighton University High School, and the Arts College. In addition to its numerous recitation rooms the building contains modernly equipped laboratories for the Departments of Chemistry and Physics as well as spacious reading and reference room in connection with the University Library which contains about 50,000 volumes available for student use.

One of the landmarks of the Creighton campus is the Astronomical Observatory which is located most advantageously to command an unusually extensive sky. Equipped with a five-inch equatorial, a three-inch transit, a micrometer, and an extensive library, the Observatory is truly the rendezvous where planets are brought to the portals of inquiring minds.

Perhaps the fastest growing department of the Arts College is the Graduate School, which has control of all graduate work carried on in the University. It aims to offer advanced courses and apportunities for reseach in the various departments of the University and its development has been essential in the building of a greater Creighton. The Graduate School is under the direction of Acting Dean H. F. Fore, who came to Creighton in the fall of 1928.

The College of Commerce, Finance and Journalism

THE keynote of present day American business was well sounded in the recent report of the President's Commission on "Recent Economic Changes." Especially emphasized was the point that there have been no basic recent economic changes, but that business today is characterized by an "increased tempo" all along the line.

Never was there greater need for "enlightened leadership" than at the present time. Keen competition makes demands upon every organization for greater economics, greater efficiency and more effective management in every phase of business, whether merchandising, operating, or financial. The larger business organizations grow, the more dependent they necessarily become on accounting and statistical information to guide them in formulating policies and handling their affairs.

The young man entering business today needs as never before a broad training in the fundamental principles of economics and business administration, and at the same time a thorough working knowledge of the practical application of these principles to the various branches of industry, commerce and finance.

Second only in importance to enlightened leadership in business, is the necessity for an enlightened public. This can only be assured when newspaper workers are trained in the fundamentals of journalism, super-imposed on a sound economic and social background.

REV. THOMAS A. EGAN, S. J.
Regent

It was in response to the demand for scientific preparation and training for business careers that the College of Commerce, Finance and Journalism was opened at the Creighton University on September 20, 1920. This college is the youngest of the University group. The four-year course offered comprises two natural divisions, the first two years being devoted to the attainment of a broad cultural background and to furnish such training in the fundamental principles of business as will prepare and fit the student for the intensive analysis required by the highly specialized commerce courses pursued during his final two years.

The advantages of location of the school in a large industrial and commercial center makes for close contacts with actual business affairs and it is these contacts that materially assist the student in determining his particular field in the realm of modern business.

The Rev. Thomas A. Egan, S. J., is Regent, and Floyd E. Walsh, A. M., B. S. C., is Dean of the College.

The College of Dentistry

BELIEVING that dentistry is an important branch of health service, the Dental College aims to prepare its students to practice their profession in accordance with modern ideas regarding the prevention and treatment of disease. Without overlooking the necessity for thorough training in the various technical procedures that are called for in the practice of dentistry, an ever increasing emphasis is being placed upon the teaching of the medical sciences as a foundation for specializing in oral work. Teaching facilities are being increased from time to time by the purchase of new equipment, and in every way the College is endeavoring to keep abreast of the times in dental education.

A. H. HIPPLE, Dean.

Located in the newest building on the campus, which unbiased opinions state is the best arranged and equipped for its size in the nation, and maintaining within its walls the finest of school spirit and ideals of service as well as the oldest of traditions, the Creighton University is proud to number among its departments the College of Dentistry. More than six hundred graduates have gone out into the professional world since the organization of the College in 1905 (when it replaced the Omaha Dental Colloge) and the progress of the majority of Creighton dentists reflects the excellence of the training received during their collge years. Creighton has consistently turned out dentists to whose work and conduct she can point with pride.

REV. T. H. AHEARN, S. J.
Regent

The spirit of Creighton is well exemplified by many of the professors of the College of Dentistry who have given years of their lives in service to the University and students. Dean A. Hugh Hipple's record is one of thirty-four years of continuous service. He held the chair of oral surgery at the Medical School from 1895 to 1905 and then came to the newly organized College of Dentistry to occupy the chair of operative dentistry. It was in 1908 that he was appointed Dean.

Dr. Charles F. Crowley, A. M., M. D., Ph. C., LL. D., who has been with the Dental College since its organization, has among his notable achievements the performance of the first X-ray in Nebraska, in 1896—perhaps the first in the middle west. He is professor of Chemistry and Metallurgy, as well as chemist for the City of Omaha, and is a nationally recognized scientist.

The School of Law

THE pride of the Creighton Law School is its library, which numbers some 35,000 carefully chosen volumes. It is a well-balanced collection, with the emphasis placed on the up-to-the-minute books which make accessible the law of today. The historical aspect, however, has not been overlooked, for a large part of one floor in the stack section is devoted to ancient books and documents which carry the research student back to medieval England—back to the days when the great system of Common Law was taking root.

Beginning with the Yearbook of 1307 in the reign of Edward II, the books on Creighton's shelves trace the progress of the Common Law through the centuries down to the decisions at current terms of court in English speaking jurisdictions the world over.

There are some larger law libraries than that of Creighton, but very few which offer a greater degree of usefulness to the student, for the Creighton Law library has 250 volumes for each student enrolled, a ratio which not many law school libraries exceed.

The Creighton ideal of service is not limited to its student body alone. Members of the bar whose private libraries fail to yield the desired authorities on legal problems are always welcome at the Creighton law library.

L. J. TePoel, Dean.

REV. THOMAS A. EGAN, S. J.
Regent

Twenty-six years have now elapsed since the College of Law was founded, with temporary headquarters at the Medical School, and, despite this humble beginning, constant progress has marked its endeavor until today it is housed in a magnificent and well equipped edifice and keeps pace with the best of the nation's law colleges. It is rated Class A by the American Bar Association and is a member in the Association of American Law Schools. Graduates of the Creighton College of Law are admitted to the Nebraska bar without examination.

It may be truly said that every member of the Law teaching staff is outstanding in his particular field of endeavor. Particularly does this apply to Dean TePoel, who is recognized throughout the country as an authority upon equity, constitutional law, and municipal corporations, and who has not only served the city with his legal talents but also has rendered aid to the Federal government at various times.

Creighton is one of the pioneers in the development of the practical side of legal training through the introduction of courses in moot court and legal bibliography. Although best known for its Law Library, which is ranked by many as being without a peer in the United States, the Law College possesses an outstanding feature in its Moot Court Room. It is here that all forms are pleaded by students, with seniors as attorneys, juniors as witnesses, and freshmen as jurors. Faculty members preside as judges and it is in this way that the students are familiarized with the proper method of conducting jury trials and develop an acquaintance with the various enigmatical phrases of litigation.

The School of Medicine

THE outstanding event of the session of 1929-1930 at the Medical School is the admission of a freshman class of ninety-six students. This signalizes the initiation of a policy of expansion which when completed will nearly double the size of the school. In anticipation, necessary changes in the buildings were made to increase the capacity of the laboratories, increased equipment for the first year was provided and the supply and service divisions were reorganized and increased in efficiency. The library was moved to more commodious quarters on the third floor of the south building taking the place of the old amphitheater long disused but vacantly reminiscent of out-moded methods of mass instruction. Notable also are the improvements in the dispensary.

To improve laboratory instruction and stimulate a scientific attitude the system of student assistant ships has been introduced with a view to increasing the opportunity of especially well qualified students to improve their fundamental education by a year spent in the work of a scientific department before advancing to the clinical work of the third year.

It is felt that Creighton can grow into a large school, strengthening and improving its instruction and affording increased advantages and stimulation to its students without losing the intimate contact and co-operation between faculty and students which has characterized its traditions and expressed itself in those intangible but valued attitudes and sentiments which in the past have been essential elements of the Creighton spirit.

H. VON W. SCHULTE, Dean.

The history of the Creighton College of Medicine is one of pride and progress. It was in the spring of 1892 that the Board of Trustees of the Creighton University, at the suggestion of John A. Creighton, who offered the funds for its maintenance, voted to open the school and a course requiring three years was offered. This was thirty-seven years ago. There were thirty-four matriculants and the faculty list contained twenty names. Classes were conducted in the Creighton Memorial St. Joseph's Hospital, the first units of which were completed in that year at Tenth and Castelar streets, and the teaching facilities of the institution (founded in 1888 by Mrs. Sarah Emily Creighton) were permanently placed at the service of the faculty of the Medical School.

REV. T. H. AHEARN, S. J.
Regent

The course was then the conventional one of the time requiring three years of eight calendar months; but in the second bulletin of the school we find a fourth year recommended and this, thereafter, became the requirement for graduation. In 1898 the present building was completed at Fourteenth and Davenport streets and the College has progressed from this beginning to the institution we know today—a tribute to the lives of those who have served it and worked in it either as student or teacher, investigator or executive.

The school has ever striven to inculcate in its students a spirit of inquiry and search for new truths and improved methods. It endeavors to prepare them for the demands of general practice and to keep bright in them the human traditions of the profession in order that its motives of service might not be lost in the pursuit of learning and the acquisition of technical skill.

The College of Pharmacy

THIS is a period of great progress in the practice of the profession of pharmacy. Probably none of the other ancient and honorable professions is progressing so rapidly. The educational requirements for admission to the profession are being increased while the field of activity of its members is being constantly broadened. The alert college of today sends forth its graduates with a thorough training in the fundamental sciences of chemistry and biology as well as in the applied science of pharmacy. The more modern colleges of pharmacy recognize the commercial phases of the profession and equip their students with a knowledge of the scientific principles of business so that they may more readily become successful when, as graduates, they administer to the welfare of the public.

This intensive scientific training received by the modern pharmacy student presents opportunities for service that were denied to the pharmacist of several years ago. A recent survey conducted by a prominent professional journal discloses the fact that there are now over sixty different kinds of positions requiring the training obtained in the colleges of pharmacy and that these positions are being filled by the graduates of these colleges.

The Creighton University College of Pharmacy, one of the larger colleges of pharmacy of the Middle West, is proud that it has been among the foremost in adopting many of the newer ideas in formulating its curriculum and believes that the success of its graduates is due, in part, to this progressive attitude.

HOWARD C. NEWTON, Dean.

REV. T. H. AHEARN, S. J.
Regent

Under the able leadership of its Dean, Howard C. Newton, Ph. G., the College of Pharmacy has made rapid progress in the last fifteen years. It is a member of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy, an organization the membership of which is limited to the institutions of the highest class as determined by their requirements for entrance and graduation.

The history of the College of Pharmacy dates back to 1905 when the Omaha College of Pharmacy was annexed to the Creighton University. Since that year a steady increase in enrollment has been enjoyed and the College has among its student-body representatives from nearly every state in the Union. In 1916, having been recognized as a Class A college, the Creighton College of Pharmacy became a member of the American Conference of Pharmaceutical Faculties and is also registered in the New York Department of Education and by the Boards of Pharmacy of Ohio and other states where registration books are maintained. In 1925, to retain its Class A rating, the course was extended from two to three years.

The ideal location of the College, adjointing the School of Medicine, has made possible a mutually valuable contact between the students and faculties of both schools. The drug-dispensing room, working in conjunction of the Medical Clinic, compounds annually about ten thousand prescriptions—filled by students under faculty supervision. The faculty, composed of leading doctors and pharmacists, actively engaged in Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Chemistry, maintains the traditional friendly relationship between student and instructor.

Creighton Memorial St. Joseph's Hospital

ESTABLISHED by the Franciscan Sisters of Perpetual Adoration within a year after their organization in the United States, St. Joseph's Hospital has been an integral part of Creighton University both as a humanitarian and as a teaching institution. The first small and unpretentious building, located at Twelfth and Mason streets, was the home of the Sisters and there they cared for the sick. Although space provided for about one hundred patients the Sisters carried on their meritorious duties in those inadequate quarters until the attention of Mrs. Sarah Emily Creighton was attracted to their needs. This beloved woman, who died in 1888, made a bequest of $50,000, thus providing part of the funds requisite for the erection of a new building, and an additional sum was advanced by her husband, John A. Creighton.

It was in 1890 that the cornerstone of the present building was laid and when completed in 1892 there were accommodations for two hundred patients. The capacity was doubled in 1908 and a wing providing complete operating rooms and a clinical amphitheater for teaching purposes was added. The construction of an annex, in 1923, provided thirty additional beds and all modern equipment for the exclusive care and treatment of nervous and mental diseases.

Today St. Joseph's Hospital is by far the largst hospital in the middle western states. Four hundred beds are available and this number can be increased when necessity demands. The institution is ideally situated and overlooks the Missouri river to the eastward where it commands a distance view of the business district to the north and the residential district to the west.

NURSES HOME

Realization of the need of university training for nurses resulted in the affiliation of the School of Nursing of St. Joseph's Hospital with the Creighton University on February 1st, 1928, when an agreement between these two institutions became effective. The combined resources of both the Hospital and the University were then available and student nurses have since been matriculated by the University.

The course offered is one of three years' duration and, when completed, a Certificate in Nursing is granted. In addition to the course of training ordinarily given in other schools of nursing, practical instruction in Physical Culture, Anesthesia, Laboratory, Roentgenology and Pharmacy is given, and should the nurse desire to specialize after graduation the experience gained during her formative period will play no small part in the selection of her specialty. The candidate may receive the degree of Bachelor of Science in Nursing in addition to her Certificate should she successfully complete two added years of work.

The Nurses Home, erected in 1923, is a modern structure comfortably equipped to accommodate one hundred and fifty nurses, and contains parlors, lecture rooms and a spacious gymnasium.

NEW BUILDING DUCHESNE COLLEGE

Duchesne College

DUCHESNE College, conducted by the Religious of the Sacred Heart, is the only senior Catholic college for women in Nebraska. It will enter upon a new era with the celebration of its Golden Jubilee by the dedication of the splendid new building now being erected on the campus at Thirty-sixth and Burt streets. In 1881 the first Religious of the Sacred Heart, under the leadership of Mother Dunne, answered the call of Right Reverend Bishop O'Connor and came from New York to establish the school in Omaha. The work prospered and gained at once a high reputation for excellent scholarship and solid character building.

Time has not dimmed that reputation. The new college building will carry on the old traditions. Madeleine Sophie Barat, the sainted foundress of the Society of the Sacred Heart, bequeathed to it the principle that, while holding to all that is best in the past, it must keep abreast of the progressive and sound educational movements of the present. The Society must adapt itself to the needs and demands of the various countries and localities in which it is established.

ST. CATHERINE'S HOSPITAL

AT the bequest of Mrs. Catherine Nash, who in 1910 donated a home at 811 Forest avenue, the Sisters of Mercy organized a Women's and Children's Hospital, which later became a general institution and known as Saint Catherine's Hospital. Increasing demands for space necessitated the addition of the first wing, which was completed in 1916, and nine years later construction work on the entire Hospital was finished. The Nurses Home and Gymnasium, however, were not built until the following year, 1926.

The School of Nursing at Saint Catherine's Hospital became affiliated with the Creighton University when an agreement between the two institutions was reached and effected in January, 1929. With completion of the standard three years of training a Certificate of Nursing is granted. IN answer to the pressing demand for higher education the College of Saint Mary was organized by the Sisters of Mercy in 1923. On May 1st, 1929, however, affiliation with the Creighton University became effective when an agreement was reached whereby the College of Saint Mary was incorporated into its educational system.

Emphasizing the educational standards which have characterized it since its organization in 1923 the College of Saint Mary accepts and retains only those undergraduates whose ability and intellectual earnestness are manifest. The College ardently adheres to tested and approved methods of instruction and the contact between teacher and student is enhanced by extra-class room contacts which are both encouraged and stressed. Student activities are sponsored to provide an outlet for physical, intellectual and artistic talent.

The Students Union

THE Creighton Students Union is the organization that supervises and directs all the activities of the student body, who comprise its membership. All male students entering Creighton are required to enroll as its members, and on the whole they receive benefits that would be unknown to them as individuals.

The organization was established in 1922 to meet the need of student government and has progressed to the extent that it is the controlling power behind most student activities. The body operates as a non-profit sharing corporation under Nebraska law, with the agreement that an annual report must be made to the Secretary of State. It employs a full time manager held under a $5,000 surety bond and a part time advertising manager for publications, resting under a bond of $1,000.

Among the publications sponsored and supervised by the Union, are the Creghtonian, student newspaper; the Blue-Jay, annual year-book; the Shadows, literary magazine; the Student Directory, and the Creighton Handbook. This list embraces all of the publications under the name of Creighton. As a result of the management by the Union all of these publications have proven successful not only from a literary standpoint but also from a financial angle.

An employment bureau by which over two hundred men receive part or full time work is also directed by the group. Approximately four hundred applications are received yearly from attending students who desire to help themselves through school. A systematic carded file system assures each applicant of a position on the list, which is taken in numerical order. Likewise, the rooming house service provides students with suitable rooms at reasonable prices. Complete inspections are made by Union officials every year, and as a consequence the list handed to each student upon demand, is authentic and insures the roomer of a well furnished, desirable home for the school year. The offices of the Union are in close contact with all of the foregoing publications and the athletic office, insuring a compactness that makes a complete co-operation between all departments. The Union office also keeps a complete file of the different cuts and mats of University activities catalogued in order, for the service of the publications, athletic and publicity departments.

Ferrari Mullen Dwyer
Rombough Offutt Cavanaugh

EDWARD D. MURHPY
Manager

Also maintained under Union supervision are the club rooms, which embrace reading rooms, musical entertainment over radio and phonograph, cards and billiard tables as well as a general meeting place for members. The club room store provides lunches and candies at a reasonable price that gives the organization little profit. These rooms, open from 11 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night, have proven very beneficial to members during their spare moments.

Among other activities of the Union, may be found the five all-University dances given yearly, climaxed by the Junior-Senior Prom in April. These dances are also given without profit in mind. Four plays are presented during the school year by the Creighton Players, and thus provides students with drama of a high character without admission charge except the Union card. The Bluejay Follies, funfest of the school year, is also presented by the Union. The Knights of the Bluejay, cheering organization, may be found under the Union name. From an unstable group, this band has become one of the most active on the campus since it has come under Union management.

GRIER WATHAM | SCOTT BURGER | BICKLEY DANIEL

REV. J. A. HERBERS, S. J.
Faculty Representative

In the background of all Union successes are the Union manager, the faculty moderator, and the Union Board of Governors. The board comprises two students from each department of the University who are elected every two years by a popular student vote. Chosen for their outstanding performances and worth to the school, these men direct all matters of school importance, with the interest of the student first in their minds. The body meets every first and third Mondays of the month in the office of the Union manager. Besides their duties as supervistors and directors, the group is responsible for the appointment of the editors and advertising managers of most of the publications. By virtue of these Governors, the student body in reality selects their own editors and managers.

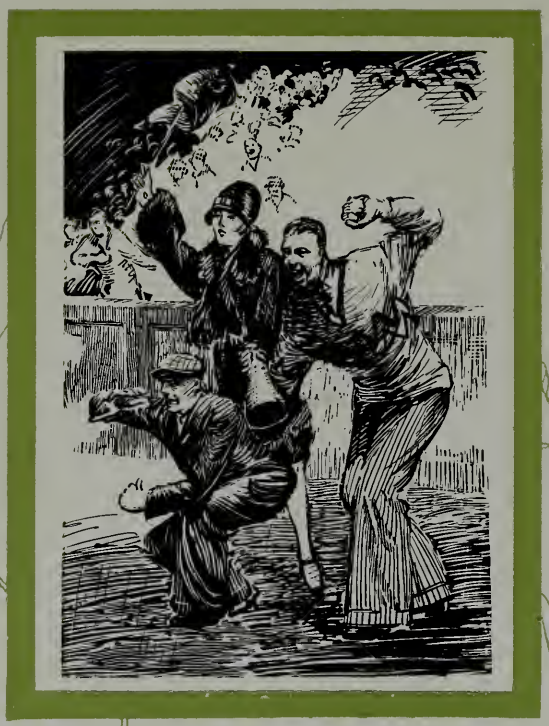

The Union has never held an attitude of superiority over its members, in fact, if they did it would be direct conflict, as the Union is the students themselves.

Salaries totalling over $4,500 are paid yearly by the Union to students, a sum that not only keeps many worth-while and conscientious students in school but puts a premium on the various publications and activities.

The Creighton Union is one of the pioneers in the field of student government. Other universities and colleges, such as Marquette and Iowa State College, are also using this idea to forward their student life and give members a greater benefit from their college years. Though it is but eight years old, Creighton has become proud of their Union and are looking forward to even greater accomplishments in the future.

Alumni

THE Creighton University Alumni Association is an organization for the purpose of promoting good fellowship and co-operation among the almuni, to increase the influence and to assist in the material development of the University. Its membership is made up of all alumni of Creighton, whether graduates or non-graduates, and all faculty members.

The first Alumni Association at Creighton was formed in 1914, and operated successfully for the two succeeding years. It then became inactive, and each department of the University had its own alumni society.

However, on November 16, 1926, Mr. Robert Burkley, president of the Arts alumni, invited delegates from all of the departments to a meeting, out of which came the second and present Pan-Alumni organization. Since that time the Association has functioned successfully, and has aided materially in many projects for the advancement and betterment of Creighton.

Prof. Hugh F. Gillespie, B. A. '05, M. A. '11, LL. B. '15, professor of law and librarian in the Creighton School of Law, is president of the Alumni Council which is now in office. This council, composed of two representatives of each of the departments, is the governing board of the Association. Assisting Prof. Gillespie are Dr. Robert Shemel, D. D. S. '17, vice president, and Frank E. Pellegrin, B. S. C. '31, secretary-treasurer.

DR. W. E. ASH | JAMES SHANAHAN | E. S. MURPHY | DR. W. L. SUCHA

Vice President

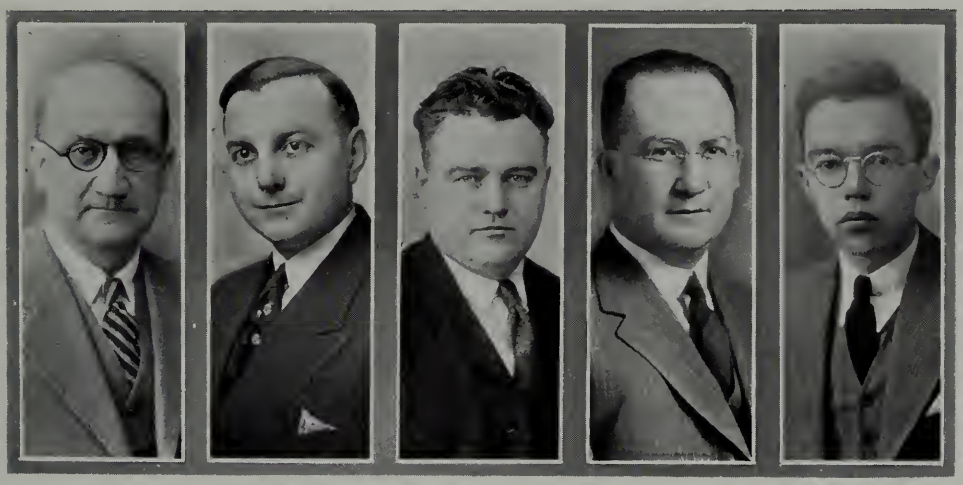

Representatives on the present Council are: From the College of Arts and Sciences, James A. Shannahan, A. B. '17, and Paul L. Martin, A. B. '00; from the College of Dentistry, Michael J. Healy, D. D. S. '20, and F. H. McGrane, D. D. S. '14; from the School of Law, Francis P. Matthews, LL. B. '13, and Frank Sheehan, LL. B. '16; from the School of Medicine, W. E. Ash, M. D. '13, and W. L. Sucha, M. D. '08; from the College of Pharmacy, Henry Lee, Ph. G. '14, and Bert Benson, Ph. G. '16, and from the College of Commerce, Finance and Journalism, Edward D. Murphy, B. S. C. '27, and Edgar S. Murphy, B. S. C. '28.

The official organ of the Association is The Creighton Alumnus, a monthly magazine edited by the secretary. All members of the Association who have paid their annual almuni dues receive copies of the magazine.

Some of the functions of the permanent alumni office, located in Omaha, are to maintain an accurate and up-to-date file of all living alumni, together with such information as may later prove valuable; to keep in direct touch with the alumni from time to time; to arrange for the annual Homecoming; to promote and care for scholarship and other drives, and generally to carry out the purpose of the Association.

The alumni secretary is assisted by a part-time secretary and with additional stenographic and office assistance whenever necessary.

In addition to the general Alumni Association, many alumni clubs have been started in various parts of the country, wherever a group of Creighton graduates have banded together. It is the purpose of these groups to keep alive the Creighton spirit after graduation, and to promote good fellowship and to provide mutual aid for those who claim Creighton as their Alma Mater.

PAUL J. MARTIN HARRY LEE DR. M. J. HEALY DR. F. H. MCGRANE E. D. MURPHY

F. E. PELLEGRIN
Secretary-Treasurer

These subsidiary clubs elect their own officers, hold banquets, meetings and reunions, and in various ways pattern their activities after those of the Association. The largest and most active group is the Los Angeles Association of Creighton Alumni, whose president is Gordon X. Richmond.

The outstanding alumni activity of the past year was the annual Homecoming, at which several thousand former Creighton students were present. Coming from states as far distant as California, these alumni returned to the scene of their college days to renew old ties and form new friendships. The work of arranging the day's program was effectively carried out by the Alumni Council, under the general direction of last year's president, Dr. Louis Bushman. Features of the day were the election of alumni officers and Council representatives for the present year; a barbecue-dinner-dance for alumni and their families and friends; class and fraternity reunions, and the Homecoming football game between Creighton and the Haskell Indians. The Homecoming was regarded as one of the largest and most active in Creighton history, and as that day is the only one on which the general members of the Association meet, it is regarded as evidence that the Creighton Alumni Association will continue to advance and prosper during the coming year, as it has in the past.

HOMECOMING GROUP

Book II

University Life

MUCH of the romance of the new west was woven into the lives of those who sought gold in the Nevada fields and likewise into the lives of those who were associated with the miners.

The completion of the telegraph line to the Pacific coast gave to John Creighton a desire to go into the unexplored west. After many experiences and adventures he opened a general store in one of the mining districts of Nevada.

BEING a freighter Edward Creighton had an early indirect connection with the development of the telegraph since he was almost constantly engaged in hauling such supplies necessary for this work. He knew the country and its conditions and he and his brother had experience in construction work, therefore he was well equipped to build the line which linked together the east and the far west.

Before building the line Edward Creighton, alone, made a survey and mapped out the course of the line. A few years later the first transcontinental railroad followed this course.

Season of 1929

Despite what was possibly the Bluejays' unhappiest football season, the largest total of fans to ever see the Jays on their home field in the history of the University was registered during the 1929 campaign. Several incidents during this unusual season made history for the Bluejay gridiron. One of the first was the introduction of night football, played 'neath powerful electric lights. This was added stimuli for the spectators who, before, had never been able to before leave their work in the afternoons to watch the Hilltoppers in action. Another was the heroic defeat of the powerful, ancient rival, Marquette, for the third successive time. One less notable was the record scoring of North Dakota State over a helpless Bluejay outfit, 54 to 0.

Creighton was the opening night host to the Knights of St. Mary's, October 5, before an eager, excited crowd of 10,000 fans. Johnny Scott's darting slashes through the tackles and around the ends kept that crowd in an uproar. The game was more or less of a walk-away after Johnny Scott's 32-yard run for a touchdown shortly after the starting whistle. The Kansas boys were sent home on the short end of an 18 to 0 count.

The following week Chet Wynne entrained for Norman, Oklahoma, with twenty-two eager gridders. But there, in that southern clime, the Bluejays were considerably mauled and cuffed into a 26 to 0 defeat. Rombough kept the Jay spirit rumbling, by crashing through the greatest line of Sooner history, by spilling such speedy backs as Crider, Mayhew and Mills for losses.

LUCAS, Guard
J. SCOTT, Halfback
O. SCOTT, Fullback

For the second time in two weeks Chet Wynne had to take his team into the heat of Oklahoma, this time to Stillwater, where the Aggies pounced on the Jays vengefully, trimming them 32 to 13. It was an atonement for the 35 to 0 blasting that the Creightonians had given them in Omaha in 1928. The Bluejays made it tough enough for the Southerners, keeping them to a bitter and hard-fought tie at the end of the first half, 13 to 13. But the boys withered under the strain in the second half, largely through lack of reserves, and were trampled on during the last thirty minutes. Besides Captain Jack Baker of the Farmer's crew, Flip Rombough, Willie Worthing and Merle Hunt made their presence felt and appreciated by a goodly audience.

BUTTERWICK, Halfback
HOLDEN, End
WILLIAMS, Guard

On October 26, a quiet and well-behaved bunch of Haskell Indians slipped into Omaha to assist several thousand Omahans and Creighton alumni to celebrate that annual festival, "Homecoming." It was pronounced by 14,000 fans to be the season's thriller. A little Buck ploughed up the new sod in the stadium on the opening kickoff, and amid the sharp cries of his follow warriors, sprinted and dodged for 105 yards to a touchdown! The Bluejays never gave up the fight and before the half ended, had evened the count, 13 to 13. The entire game was one wild dash after another, the honors being divided between "Buster" Charles, fleet Indian back, Willie Worthing, Charles Weller and Johnny Scott. It was the Charles lad who broke loose in the last few minutes for a 45-yard run that finished the evening for the Bluejays. The score sheet read at the last gun, Haskell Indians, 19; Creighton, 13.

A special train on the noon of November 2nd carried hundreds of Bluejay rooters to the Drake stadium in Des Moines, where the boys were again beaten, 34 to 12. But the Bulldogs of Drake knew that they had been in a football game of a most severe nature. The Bluejays made 16 first downs, while the men of Iowa piled up 17; the Jays made 182 yards in scrimmage, and the Iowans garnered 277. It was the same story this night as it had been two weeks previous at Stillwater—insufficient reserve material, and a long list of the boys on the casualty roll. Rombough was disabled at the half, and Scott left the field in the fourth period with a limp right arm. Nesbit, the Bulldogs' phenomenal fullback, seemed to crack the Bluejay line for gains almost at will. While Johnny Scott was able, he kept the Drake rooters in a restless turmoil with his brilliant runs through and around the Drake line.

At this stage of the season the Bluejay fans were quite discouraged. On the 7th of November, Chet Wynne loaded twenty-three of his gridders on an eastbound train for Milwaukee. The boys were silent, grim and desperate looking. Sports writers over the country were still commenting upon the magnificent manner in which the Golden Avalanche of Marquette had battled the powerful Detroit University to a 6 to 6 tie the week before. Advance "dope" on the Bluejays by the football authorities gave them nothing in the way of even a scoring chance with the mighty men of the Avalanche. But, lo and behold! For fifty-three bitterly contested minutes eleven Bluejays fought shoulder to shoulder with scarcely a pause for respite, with only three substitutions, made in the last seven minutes of play. Sisk, Corbett, Brousseau and other Marquette threats, made little impression on the infuriated Jays. The more remarkable was their victory of 13 to 6 without Johnny Scott in the backfield, with Flip Rombough crashing the line repeatedly with one injured knee; Jack Furay taking a terrific beating about the head from the constant stream of fresh linemen sent in to oppose him; Bill LeFeber, despite several ailments, never leaving the game for one minute; Larry Lucas being responsible for one of the touchdowns by breaking through and blocking a kick. Hunt, McConville, Burger, Tesar, Rettenmaier and Somers added their gigantic bits in the one glorious spot on Creighton's schedule. It was their third successive victory over Marquette in as many seasons, with the last two games being played in Milwaukee. Over 18,000 fans sat in that electically-lighted stadium and watched the Jays make seven first downs, to Marquette's eight; 118 yards in scrimmage to the Avalanche's 113.

But the next Saturday night showed the results of the Jays' terrific fight against their ancient enemy. Coach Jack West brought down from North Dakota his powerful Flickertail contingent. It was too much for the Bluejays, who had apparently spent their strength the Saturday night previous, and succumbed on a sloppy field before just an average crowd of shivering fans, 54 to 0. Johnny Scott was on the sidelines with injuries received in the Drake game, and Larry Lucas was removed shortly after the opening whistle. Before the half ended, Worthing, Rombough and LeFeber were removed to the sidelines and North Dakota ran rampant.

Thanksgiving day found Chet Wynne's men in better shape than they had been in the previous three weeks, though some were still limping. Grinnell's Pioneers, contenders for the Missouri Valley Conference title by virture of their tie with the Drake Bulldogs earlier in the season, came primed to wreck any hopes that the Jays might have of coming out of the cellar. But it wasn't in the cards for the Bluejays to upset the dope and the gruelling battle turned slowly into a victory for the Iowans late in the second half, 12 to 0. Don Somers' educated toe, which had proved such a factor in the successful 1927 season, made its final bid for fame with several long boots deep into Grinnell territory. Seven Bluejays were given their farewell calls from the stands that afternoon. Johnny Scott, Floyd Rombough, Larry Lucas, Don Somers, Merle Hunt, Charles Butterwick and Russell Sweeney made their final bows.

Concurrently at the time the Blue-Jay went to press, the University was surprised and astonished to learn of the resignation of Chet Wynne as head coach of football and track. A few days later another surprise, which was most agreeable to all, came with the announcement of Arthur R. Stark and Lon R. Graf as the new Bluejay football and track coaches for the seasons of 1930-31. The former signed as head football coach and the latter will be the new assistant in football and the head coach for the track team. The same announcement stated that the freshman gridiron squad will be in charge of Elmer P. Lang, who was Wynne's chief assistant during the past season.

Wynne departed from the Hilltop fold to take charge of a larger team in the South. The football men, students of the University, alumni and followers of the Bluejays regret to see Wynne leave after a splendid record of eight years at Creighton, but are pleased to learn that he is bettering his position in the football world.

Prior to the announcement of his resignation Coach Wynne conducted one of the most satisfactory and successful spring football sessions ever staged by the Bluejays. This fact, coupled with the new personnel, indicates a good season for 1930. The Blue-Jay takes this opportunity to welcome the new coaches and to wish Chet Wynne good luck in his new venture.

THE FRESHMAN SQUAD

Freshman Football

The opening of the grid season found new faces on the Bluejay coaching staff, notable among the replacements were the appointments of Dr. Sammy Canigilia and Dr. Joe Speicher as head coach and assistant coach, respectively, of the freshman equad. "Hatless Sammy" had been named the season before by Lawrence Perry as one of the 1928 season's outstanding guards, and by Knute Rockne for All-American honorable mention.

Fifty frosh were issued their leathers and cleats when the first call went out for candidates. A record was set with the number of famed high school stars found on the new roster. Some of the more huge lads were, Clarence Hartman, 220-pound tackle; Francis Cooney, 215 pounds, an all-Pacific Coast selection for two seasons; Lou Weiner, an all-Nebraska high star for two seasons; Carl Smith, also an all-Nebraska selection for left end, and some forty others with considerable notoriety for smashing opposing linesmen, or running wild over broken and unbroken gridirons.

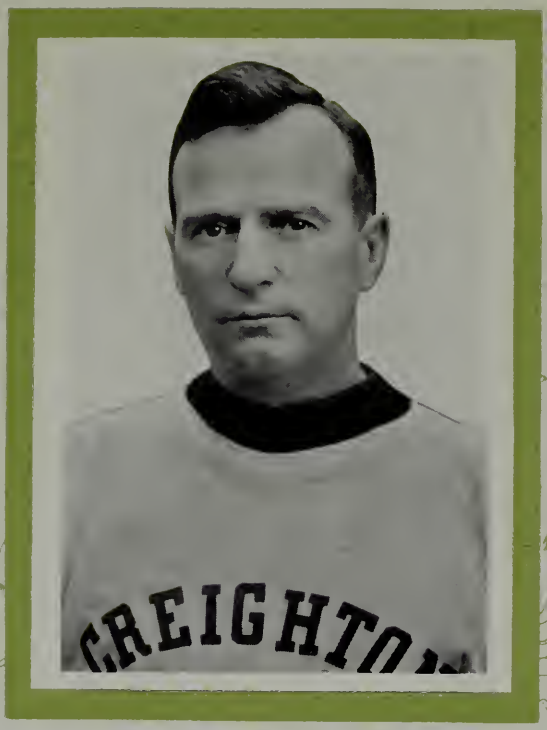

DR. SAM CANIGLIA

The yearlings, for their conscientousness in taking daily drubbings from the Varsity, were rewarded for their pains with a trip to Manhattan, Kansas, to do battle with the Kansas Aggies frosh, on November 16. Both squads were at a disadvanage owing to the soggy and extremely muddy field. For three quarters the Jay frost held their own, managing to keep the Kaggies from crossing their goal line. But a series of passes late in the last period sent the first Kansas man across the line. An intercepted Bluejay pass brought about the second touchdown, and the final score read: Kansas Aggies 12, Creighton 0.

Richard Sklenar, who was elected captain of the frosh squad at the end of the season, did outstanding work in the Kansas game, as did Jelen, Hickey, Cashman and Smith. This ended the frosh season.

Basketball 1930

The Bluejay basket tossers made their season's official practice debut on November 18, with Coach Arthur A. Schabinger supervising, and apparently pleased at the appearance which his athletes made as they leaped and cavorted gingerly about the gym. Coach "Schabie" was not only pleased with their appearance but also with their seeming eagle eyes for the hoop and their accuracy and swiftness of passing and floor work, at this early stage of the season. There was little reason to be surprised at this, as Captain Louis Trautman, Brud Jensen, Bart Corcoran, Fred Melchiors, Maurice Van Ackeren, and several of the lesser lights, Parker, Davis, James Logan and Jim Sheridan, had been training on the court since early September.

TRAUTMAN, Captain and Forward

VAN ACKEREN, Forward

Immediately following the football season, Wee Willie Worthing was given an honorable discharge by Coach Chet Wynne from his quarterback position to become Coach "Schabie's" threatening understudy for Captain Louis Trautman. As the team lined up for their premier showing, Friday, December 20, against a rejuvenated group of Farmers from the Stillwater, Oklahoma, Agricultural college, Corcoran and Melchiors were at guards, Jensen at center, Van Ackeren and Trautman were in the forward positions. The tension of having the curtain raised and the ballyhoo of a strong Aggie team made the Jays uncertain at the start. They finally swung into action, and with the insertion of Worthing, they spurted to a quick victory, 30 to 14.

The next evening, with a cheerful town and audience to watch them, the Bluejays disported themselves in rare style, completely stifling the Southerners under a barrage of some of the plainest and fanciest basket shooting seen in these parts since the days of the famous "Chuck"

Kearney. The massacre ended with the Bluejays having piled up the biggest score of the season, 55 to 26. As had been early predicted, Maurice Van Ackeren would be the toast of the town and his fellow collegiates, even though only a sophomore.

A four-day layoff was permitted the boys to allow them to get into their share of plum pudding and other Christmas edibles. They were immediately summoned back to duty to prepare for what some thought the season's most strenuous series of conflicts, that with Syracuse University. It was quite apparent as practice hours went on that much of Creighton's success for this season would depend on "Bounding Bart" Corcoran and Van Ackeren. Louis Trautman was finding it extremely difficult to keep up the pace with such speedy youngsters as Willie Worthing and Van and even the ponderous Jensen appeared to be slowing up.

On January 3, Syracuse made its appearance, and Creighton and Omaha left the gym that night quite agreed that they had never sat in on quite such thrilling basketball before. The Bluejays eked out a victory, 31 to 27, and managed to learn some new tricks on clever floor work and deceptive passes.

MELCHIORS, Guard and Captain-Elect

The next night, with the crowd seated in every seat and on every available promontory jutting out from the walls, including windows and rafters, the Syracusans reversed the finale and squeezed out a 27 to 25 decision.

On the 7th of January the boys packed up for a tour that was to take them as far as Lexington, Kentucky. On their way east they dropped off in St. Louis to entangle with the Washington Bears for the prize rung of the Missouri Valley Conference ladder. They were soundly drubbed for their pains, 45 to 33. Van Ackeren managed to run a terrific number of points, leaving him in the lead for high scorers in the Conference. Meyers, lanky Bear, proved to be the Bluejay's Nemesis, and at that time was only a few points short of tying Maurice's scoring record.

The next night the Bluejays were introduced to a slightly different style of basketball as played by the Blue Grass mountaineers of Lexington. Judging from the "raves" that the sports scriveners of Kentucky handed out, our boys must have been quite a surprise to them, too. Willie Worthing shocked the good citizens and incidentally the players of Kentucky also by drawing a deadly bead on the hoop.

Saturday night it seemed doubtful whether or not the gym wouldn't burst with the overflow crowd that attempted to squeeze in to have a peek at "these heah Catholics" who shoot baskets at any time from any angle. An estimated crowd of 9,500 were almost disappointed with the showing their lads made for three quarters, when the Bluejays had the game in the bag. The latter foolishly started to stall, and the men of Kentucky made good several breaks that always fall to the lot of the team that is being stalled and won, 25 to 21.

DAVIS, Guard
LOGAN, Guard
SHERIDAN, Center

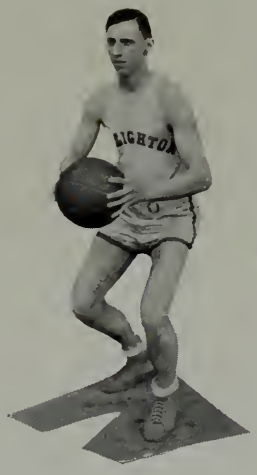

Another trip the succeeding week found the boys being entertained with an easy victory over Drake at Des Moines. Van Ackeren and Jensen were largely responsible for the top-heavy 40 to 27 score. Van made 12 points and Jensen did the same. Worthing was not to be outdone by the performance of his mates and straightway thrilled the Iowa audience with two powerfully long shots.

Ever a good night for a basketball game is Saturday night, and especially in Milwaukee, when the Bluejays come to town. The crowds were willingly delayed that night for two extra periods. It has never been explained why the Bluejays were kept down to such a small score, but it was nevertheless authentically reported that the final tabulation read 19 to 17 in their favor. Corcoran, of course, had to be the one to finally decide the affair with four points in the last few minutes of the engagement. Freddy Melchiors was making his presence felt more keenly as the season progressed, and especially in the Marquette fracas when he slipped in five points that were much appreciated in the low point game that it was.

During the next week Coach "Schabie" lessened his workouts on the boys, as they were to spend the next three games of the schedule on the home court. On January 22, Grinnell was showered under with some fine basket shooting on the part of Willie Worthing, Van Ackeren and Jensen. The score, Creighton 45, Grinnell 17. There were times during the mid-season when the latter showed some of his 1928-29 season form.

L. WARIN, Forward

Three nights later the Bluejays were hosts to Iowa State and, to put it frankly, "a goodly crowd was there," with one upper section filled with Iowa fans. The Jays were in constant danger in the second half after what seemed a very safe start with a ten point lead. The local critics accused the boys of losing their vitality and acting indifferent. At any rate, they finally pulled out of danger with a 40 to 34 victory. Jensen seemed the most consistent, tossing six goals, while Worthing gave a steady performance from the foul line, dropping four free throws in a row. Van Ackeren, playing with a bruised hand, nevertheless contributed some fine floor work and two important baskets when they were needed.

E. WARIN, Guard

One of the most anticipated games of the season was the Missouri-Bluejay fray. And Creighton fans have yet to see the Bluejays trim the Missourians. The great Missouri combine of Craig and Collins, both guards, proved too much for the Jays, who lost out in another of those last second thrillers, 32 to 30. This game marked the introduction of the new style of play, starting the ball from the end zone instead of carrying it to center for the jump. In the first ten minutes of play, the Bluejays seemed about as torrid a group of lads that was ever assembled on one court. Van Ackeren, Worthing and Corcoran sank some of the longest shots yet seen on the Hill-top court. At the ten-minute period the count stood, Creighton 16, Missouri 5. Then Corcoran turned his ankle and he was relieved by Davis. The half ended, Missouri 17, Creighton 16. Missouri kept the lead the entire next half with the exception of the last few minutes when Freddy Melchiors tied the count at 30 all. An attempted Schabinger strategy to have a quick substitution to give the boys respite, never materialized owing to the terrific din caused by the fans and in turn causing the referee to miss hearing the whistle at the scoring table. In the remaining seconds, Captain Craig of the Bengals sank the heartrending goal and the game ended there.

Another three game trip was in store for the Bluejays, beginning February 7, at Grinnell. The Grinnell trip was almost disastrous owing to the hampering influence of a low ceiling and the cracker-box size of the gymnasium. Van Ackeren led the offensive and was in a sense the winner for the Jays when the final gun sounded and the latter were leading, 21 to 20. Parker Davis made an impressive debut in the middle of the game by sinking two much needed field goals.

The next night the Bluejays were in Iowa City to avenge a one- point beating that they had acquired the season before from the Tall Corn boys. This was a real dope upsetter as the Iowans promptly set the boys down, holding Van Ackeren scoreless, but letting Big Boy Jensen garner eight goals for himself, the final count reading Iowa 33, Creighton 28.

Columbia, Missouri, saw the Bluejays dismount from the train on the morning of February 11, trimmed them roughly, 29 to 21 that evening, and sent them on home to prepare for the big conference tilt with the Washington Bears.

St. Valentine's night found the gym again loaded with fans, most of them doubting the Bluejays' ability to stop the Bears in their conference fight. The Bears concentrated on watching Van Ackeren, and Willie Worthing fooled them by sinking five goals and two free throws, followed by Jensen with four goals, and Corcoran with three. Even the carefully guarded Van scored two. It was an assault that resulted in Creighton 40, Washington 23. The title seemed all but won.

Marquette, with its highly touted quintet, arrived on the 17th of February, and were beaten out in the last thirty seconds of play by a carefully poised shot by Van Ackeren. Van was invincible all evening and Corcoran kept things hot on his end of the court. The final count, Creighton 28, Marquette 26.

At this stage of the season Creighton was leading the Missouri Valley Conference with six games won and one in the lost column. Washington was in second place with four won and two lost and with a doubleheader scheduled with the weak Oklahoma Aggies who hadn't won a Conference game as yet. Creighton had one game left on their Conference schedule, and that with Drake, who had succumbed to the Bluejays earlier in the season on their own floor by the heavy count of 40 to 27. Everything looked favorable for the first Conference title.

It looked like another repetition of the first Drake game the way the Jays started on the Bulldogs, the night of February 25, in the home gym. At the ten minute period,

THE USHERETTES

THE FRESHMAN SQUAD

Drake had not made a basket and the Bluejays were leading, 17 to 2. That strange let-down that had come over the boys in several of the season's earlier games seemed to take hold again on this night. Barnes and Bowes of Drake collaborated to bring the Bulldogs' total up to 16. At the half the count stood 20 to 16 and Creighton not looking any too good. From there to the end of the game, the lead shifted and see-sawed. With two minutes to go Drake led 31 to 27. Then Corcoran converted King's personal and Jensen slipped in a short field goal. With one minute to go, Bart sent a happy chill through the crowd with a long looping counter from the center of the floor. An attempted stalling game played havoc with the Bluejays, the ball went to Monahan, Drake guard, and as the Creightonian graphically described it, "Last second shot crushes Jay hopes." Score: Drake 33, Creighton 32. The next week Washington trimmed the Oklamoha Aggies in a doubleheader, leaving the Bluejays sharing the top honors with the Bears.

J. V. BELFORD
Freshman Coach

The Kansas Jayhawks, six times winners of the old Missouri Valley Conference and champs of the Big Six, were the next and final foes of the Bluejays for February 28. Sports writers of the Big Six loop were a bit uneasy over their pets having to meet the powerful Bluejays. The Blues defeated the highly touted "upper Conference" boys, 44 to 20. Maurice Van Ackeren sent the boys off to a good start with 13 markers before any of the other nine men on the floor were able to find the hoop. Bart Corcoran, making his farewell appearance on the Creighton court, played his usual magnificent game and was given a tremendous ovation when he left the floor.

The Conference standing of the Missouri Valley stood as follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Creighton	6	2	.750
Washington	6	2	.750
Drake	4	4	.500
Grinnell	4	4	.500
Oklahoma Aggies	0	8	.000

THE 1930 track team, under the leadership of Co-captains Barron and Binder, is rapidly rounding into shape for the coming meets. While the schedule is not as heavy as that of last season, yet Creighton has hopes of attaining some good results in the final meets. In the early indoor meets, the team was handicapped by lack of material to construct a winning team. However, everything considered, they did well.

The opening meet was held at Kansas City on February 8. Turner and Co-captains Barron and Binder were the only Bluejays competing, and they in special events only. Turner was entered in the 440-yard dash, Barron in the 50-yard dash, and Binder in the mile run. While they failed to share any of the first honors, yet they finished well up in the final ranking.

In the Missouri Valley Indoor Meet, held on March 1, at Des Moines, Creighton was represented by Barron, Binder, Turner, Gaughen, Allison, and Paben. In this meet Barron finished a close third in the 50-yard dash, and was barely nosed out in the 50-yard low hurdles for first place. The judges, after considerable consultation, gave him third place. Binder was able to squeeze out a fourth place in the mile run, and Turner and Gaughen gave a good account of themselves in the 440, but failed to place. The mile relay, composed of Barron, Allison, Binder and Turner, ran an exciting race, being nosed out of first place by Grinnell.

At the time of publication the squad still has the Drake relays and the Missouri Valley outside meet to look forward to, the latter to be held at the Creighton field. The team expects to make a good showing in the Conference meet. Barron, at the present writing, is considered a favorite in the 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, and low hurdles.

In preparation for the Missouri Valley Conference championship track and field meet scheduled to occur late in May in the Bluejay stadium, the athletic department of the local school went to considerable expense in rebuilding the track. The old track was torn up completely and the old cinders and dirt hauled away and were replaced by three grades of new material, first with a heavy grade on the track bed, an intermediate quality in between, and then the softest and finest grade cinder on the top. The completion of this new running oval has given to Creighton and the Bluejays undoubtedly one of the very best tracks in the country. The fact that a championship meet will be the first encounter staged on the new track should be the means whereby several new Missouri Valley marks and records should be rolled up. However, the construction of the new track had a drawback inasmuch as it hampered considerably the practice of the trackmen. They were forced to run on the grass turf of the football gridiron.

The resignation of Coach Chet Wynne in mid-season proved to be another handicap. He was with the team during thei ndoor season, but in the spring devoted some of his time to the spring football practice before leaving for the school which he is to coach next season. In the past few years he has developed a number of good trackmen, and two of these stars, Co-captains Barron and Binder, have been conducting the squad during his absence.

On of the features of the season's workouts to date has been the enthusiasm displayed by the frosh aspirants. Edwin Triba and Cyril Wise have been appearing to advantage in the sprints. Kubat, one of the best prospects to ever matriulate at Creighton, and Ben Foley, both distance stars, have exhibited talent that promises to be of value for the future Jay track teams. Some of the other star first year performers are Joe Langdon, Don Murphy, and Fred Crowley.

Lon Graf, from the Nebraska State Teachers College, has been signed as Wynne's successor. He will fall heir to several stars, and with his ability as an eminent coach, the Bluejays should be insured of good teams in the future.

The personnel of the 1930 squad is as follows:

Thomas Barron, sprinter and hurdler, running in the 100-yard, 220-yard and 440-yard low hurdles.

Harry Binder, distance runner, mile and half mile.

Ray Turner, 440-yard dash.

THE season of 1930 found Creighton represented in the Missouri Valley Conference in a new field of athletic endeavor, namely, that of swimming. In spite of the fact that there was an absence of formidable material with which to consctruct a winning team, yet great credit is due Coach Peter G. Wendell and the assistance given by Captain S. Kirkpatrick, for the astounding results obtained while working under such a handicap.

Upon the initial call for candidates for the team, the coach was confronted with a group of fifteen earnest would-be tankers, the majority of which had had absolutely no experience in this sport. However, they worked hard and diligently for several months, and in the initial meet staged at Des Moines against Drake University, the defending Missouri Valley champs, the Bluejay splashers were able to garner 21 points, against 54 for the veterans.

SEVERNIUS KIRKPATRICK

Well pleased with their results, they continued to work hard, and against Grinnell, in the local tank, they put up a strong bid for honors, and were able to acquire 28 points to 47 for the opponents. While the score would show very little improvement, the records made

THE basketball championship of the University is decided each year by an intra-mural tournament which continues throughout the winter months, climaxed by a championship game sometime in the spring. The tournament this year was unusually successful from the point of the number and quality of the teams entered and the enthusiasm shown by the various teams in the play. Practically every class in every department of the University was represented by a team.

Classes were divided into two leagues, the White and the Blue. Under the direction of Elmer Lang, assistant football coach and director of intra-mural athletics, each league played a series of games to decide the winner of the league. The winners of each league, based on a percentage basis, met in a post-season game to decide the championship of the University.

The Senior Pharmacy quintet won the title in the White division and the Junior Commerce players were victorious in the Blue division. In a close game that rivaled the best varsity competition, the "Pill Rollers" from the Pharmacy school, cinched the University title by taking the Commerce team to the tune of 29 to 20.

The intra-mural play is always watched closely by Head Basketball Coach A. A. Schabinger, for any material that might have varsity prospects. This year's play developed some outstanding players who gave promise of varsity utility next year. An all-intra-mural team selected by the Creighonian included: Forwards, Blumette, Junior Commerce; McDermott, Sophomore, Arts; Strawhecker, Senior Commerce. Centers, Paben, Junior Pharmacy; Somers, Senior Commerce. Guards, Butterwick, Senior Pharmacy; Scott, Senior Commerce; Rettenmaier, Senior Pharmacy.

HANDBALL established itself as one of the outstanding intra-mural sports with the completion of the 1930 tournament. More interest was displayed this year than ever before. William Stalmaster, a senior law student, won the singles title by virtue of his victory, in the finals, over Harold Margolin, also a law student. Stalmaster also collaborated with Maurice Blacker to win the doubles crown.

The victory of Stalmaster came as a distinct surprise. Sam Epstein, a commerce junior, was heavily favored to annex the title, in the pre-tourney speculation. But the future business man fell a victim to the steady playing of the ultimate champion,

The Golf Tournament

AS the lue-Jay goes to press the annual golf tournament is under full swing. The entry list this year is uarger than previously, which is evidence that the tourney is a growing feature among the minor sports of the University. Some of the best tournament and match players in the Nebraska realm of golfdom are included among the contestants.

Survivors after the first few rounds are Ray Loesch, William Manasil, Robert Collins, Cecil Steele, E. R. Sturek, Loyal Martin, Herbert luechel, Ray Palmer, John Hagerty, John Bluemette, Harold Crawford, Hal Roddy, Ed Campion, William Kelly and Fred Melchiors.

Manasil, the 1929 champion, is a favorite to retain his title, although he will find considerable comptition from such stars as Fred Mlchiors, Hal Roddy, Robert Collins and Ray Palmer. The latter is a former champion, winning the title two successive years. Ed Campion, a Medic from Ross, Cal., has turned in some low scores during the early season play.

THE Physical Education Department of Duchesne College strives to achieve the aims and ideals in women's athletics as expressed in the statements and policy of the American Physical Education Association. The object of this Association is to "administer athletics in such a way as to build rational and wholesome sentiments, habits, and traditions among the students; to establish educational leadership; to build up public opinion in support of athletics organized for the physical benefits and the social and moral welfare of the students, instead of primarily as a public spectacle." To achieve these aims, to promote health consciousness and develop health habits, to further ideals of sportsmanship and school spirit, the Athletic Association was organized in October, 1928. It is similar to the Associations established in the representative girls' colleges throughout the United States.

The Association, becoming really active in 1929-30, includes practically the whole student body. Its activities are of a nature calculated not only to promote health and the play spirit, but also to develop leadership and initiative in students. For this reason it deals not alone with athletics, but with other activities that are motivated by the students themselves.

In harmony with the work done in the Physical Education department, the Athletic Association has sponsored numerous tournaments throughout the year, granting suitable awards to winning groups. Tennis opened the athletic schedule at the beginning of the year 1920-30, to be followed in immediate succession by archery, volleyball, basketball, Nebraska ball, golf, and baseball, each in season. For these group games the Duchesne Association has adopted the national slogan: "A game for every girl, and every girl in a game." It stresses participation rather than outstanding skill, mass activity rather than spectacular individual achievement. Under this policy a greater percentage of students have taken part in athletics than ever before. Those who are not skilled in highly organized games have found less strenuous games that they can play with pleasure and profit. Yet the technique of the highly organized game has not been neglected in the training process, nor do excellent players fail to appear, facts that were self-evident in the various tournaments.

The Association strives chiefly to stimplate interest in healthful activities that can be carried on after the students leave school. These are the individual sports—tennis, golf, archery, swimming, skating, skiing, horseback riding, and walking—that can be indulged in even late in life. The last named, walking, a prosaic thing in itself, was made a matter of tournament importance and surrounded by all the glamour of a contest in the Transcontinental Race conducted in April.

The Athletic Association sponsored the first Health Week at Duchesne, with posters, lectures, and laboratory work in hygiene, the correlation of healthy and beauty care of the body, posture, and remedial work, all tending to attack the health situation in a spirited, constructive way.

The College of Saint Mary

THE Co-Ath Club, the athletic association of the College of Saint Mary, was organized in 1929. It aims to foster a spirit of true sportsmanship among the students participating in athletics. Tennis, volleyball, skating, and hiking have been the most popular sports among the members. The point system of merit was employed in the determination of awards.

BASKETBALL

During the 1930 season a series of basketball games in the nature of a tournament were played with the Co-Ath Club as the sponsor. Competition for the most part was restricted between the two classes, and later the winning team competed against the St. Mary's High School.

St. Joseph Hospital Training School

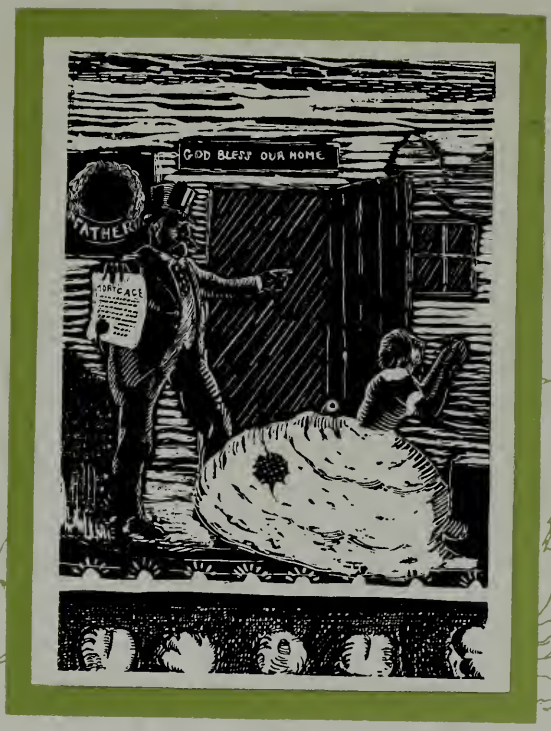

UNDER the direction of Coach George McCabe, the Creighton Training School basketball sextet developed into the most promising material ever assembled in the school. Seven games won and five lost was the record of the season. In the first five games of the season the team played exceptionally well. The first game was won by 28-8 over the Jewish Community Center, and the four following by similar margins. The best game of the season was played against the Omaha University, the latter winning by 14-11. The poorest form was displayed when the Training School was defeated by Omaha Letter Shop, 28-8.

Four of the regulars were lost by graduation. Marie Cunningham, captain and center, Mary Walsh and Genevieve Van Ackeran, guards, and Genevieve McMahon, forward, have played their last games for Creighton Training School.

George McCabe, a sophomore in Commerce, coached the team and its success is to his credit.

Dramatics

THE season of the Creighton Players, who presented three modern plays, two comedies and one mystery play, while not financially successful nor extraordinarily produced, were satisfying enough as far as amateur collegiate theatricals are concerned. The plans laid by the Creighton Players during the previous year for a permanent Little Theatre with an authorized faculty to teach dramatics were dropped during the 1929 summer in lieu of other building plans which were at that time more paramount for University expansion.

"Three Live Ghosts" was the first offering of the Players, the presentation being at the Knights of Columbus auditorium early in November. The cast, all new faces to Creighton dramatics, worked hard and the show brought out the fact that there is yet considerable talent in the school.

Bernadine Reilly, as the old, eccentric Mrs. Gubbins, and Lawrence Welch, Bernard Sheridan and Maurice Alperin as the ghosts evoked some clever comedy. Others in the show were Agnes Cragen Krell, Walter McEveny, Marcella Lindberg, Leo Smith, Doris Adkins, Joseph Vinardi, Robert Rutherford and Master Lawrence Krell, Jr.

The next show, Rev. J. A. Herbers, S. J., dean of men, took over the reins of the faltering Players' club and he gave them a temporary lease on life with that riotous comedy of James Gleason's and Richard Taber's, "Is Zat So." One of the finest supporting casts of the season was employed in putting this show over. Hugh Higgins, who had already created a stir at the Omaha Playhouse with his

ROTC Band

REORGANIZED by Sergeant Daniel Slezinger at the beginning of the year and containing nearly fifty members, the Creighton R. O. T. C. Band rose from an unstable organization to the best equipped and most active band ever produced at the University.

The band was in evidence at all of the football games of the season, where they not only furnished the music but staged stunts and formations during the intermission. One of the outstanding achievements for the year was the trip to Drake for the Creighton-Drake football contest with the entire personnel of the band accompanying the team. The Creighton spirit and the school was advertised extensively not only at the Drake stadium but throughout the business district of Des Moines, as the parade of the band followed by the Creighton rooters attracted a great deal of attention.

Much of the credit for the band's success is due to the efforts of Sargeant Slezinger, who spent unlimited time on the development of the organization. Sergeant Slezinger is a retired U. S. Army band director.

Members of the band were distinguished from other cadets by the white and blue braid hanging from the left shoulder.

Choral Club

AS a Creighton organization embracing members from the various colleges of the University, including Duchesne, College of Saint Mary, St. Joseph's and St. Catherine's hospitals, and factulty members, the Creighton Choral Club represents one of the most cosmopolitan of campus groups.

The club is under the direction of John A. Jamieson. Its duties are various, ranging from weekly High Mass singing to a series of entertainments for different campus and city organizations.

The members wear a distinctive gown at all mass concerts and have established a reputation throughout the city and over the radio as an accomplished choral group.

Among other appearances of the club were singing at the Oxford debate, and the Oratorical finals. Two of the notable features on the club's calendar were the Christmas midnight Mass broadcast of radio station KOIL and the broadcasting of the "Tre Ore" services from St. John's Church.

Choral Club
Duchesne College

THE Duchesne Choral Club, consisting of over fifty members, has as its special aim the study of church music, as well as general choral singing. Activity of the group consists chiefly in furnishing choir music during chapel. At special entertainments given by the college, the Choral Club appears as a featured number. The Christmas entertainment given at Duchesne this year was arranged and furnished by the organization.

Under the direction of the Madam in charge of music at the college, the Choral group meets four times a week.

Members of the Club include Genevieve Abts, Rity Barry, Nada Batson, Regina Curry, Teresa Casey, Nellie Connolly, Margaret Doty, Mary Alice Eiting, Hazel Ford, Margaret Fitzgerald, Marie Fitzgerald, Helen Hawn, Bernadine Hunker, Maxine Kellogg, Catherine Kuhl, Rita Molseed, Ruth Macomber, Elizabeth Mooney, Ruth Nothomb, Elinor Plumer, Josephine Rizk, Leonardo Riordan, Helen Clare Schneider, Margaret Van Ackeren, and Praxedes Zayas.

Glee Club
St. Catherine's Hospital

UNDER the direction of a student nurse, Miss Eileen Enright, the St. Catherine's Glee Club spent a successful year from the viewpoint of entertainment for the members and chapel singing and exercises. The Club, composed of twenty-four members of the Training School, has as its main duty the singing of special numbers in collaboration with the Sodality at the student chapel each Sunday morning. Future plans are being worked out by members of the group who hope to have an even larger and more active organization next year.

Members: Agnes Brady, Irene Cooney, Ida Doll, Margaret Duffy, Margie Filmer, Mildred Higgins, Aurelia Koenig, Bernie McEvoy, Madeline McEvoy, Kathryn Mayers, Kathryn Monaghan, Bernice Murphy, Clara Nodolny, Olga Pucelik, Marcelle Regan, Alyce Riley, Catherine Ring, Mari Roy, Marie Schmidt, Elizabeth Shilts, Irene Stafford, Margaret Sweeney, Angela Thiem, and Rosalie Turley.

GLEE CLUB

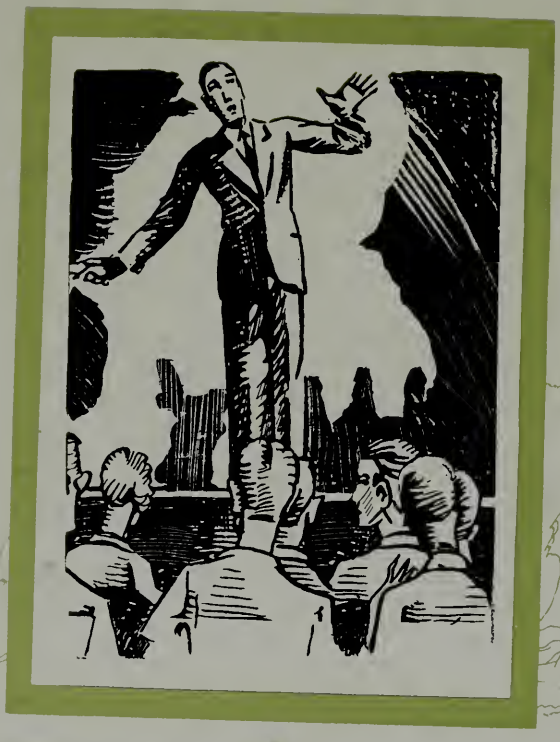

THE Glee Club is one of the oldest and one of the most popular organizations among the students at Saint Mary's. It receives its direction from the Fine Arts Department of the College. The repertoire of the Glee Club is varied, ranging from vocal entertainment at many of the college social activities to the presentation of religious numbers at chapel services. About thirty students are members of this club.

ORCHESTRA

The first appearance of the Orchestra for the year was made at the reception given for Bishop Rummel at the college in October. The group has also provided musical entertainment at the various college social activities throughout the year, and has played at the St. Mary's High School and alumnae gatherings.

Debate Squad

THE Crighton debaters have completed the most extensive debating season in the history of the University. One international and two intersectional debates headed the schedule. These were home debates. Two teams carried the fame of Creighton debating far afield, one south to St. Louis and the other to the east as far as Detroit.

Of twenty debates scheduled, eleven resulted in victories, three in defeats, and six were no decision encounters. Last year the squad was undefeated in eleven debates. This year the same number of victories were chalked up, though nine more contests were scheduled. This year eight different questions were discussed as compared with the three or four of previous seasons.

The success of the season is attributable to the work of Faculty Moderator C. M. Ryan, S. J., Captain Ephraim L. Marks, Manager John I. Dugan and Assistant Managers Leo Smith, Bernard Martin and Sheridan Byrne. It was an extremely ambitious season and too much credit cannot be given to all of the squad and particularly to the officers for the splendid work. The squad was composed of twelve letter men, and eight candidates, of whom three received keys, Krell, Steinbaugh and Blaes. Graduation this year claimed former Captain Louis Lipp, Gerald Vasak and Lawrence Krell.

The Freshman debate squad this year contained some fine varsity prospects. James Fitzgerald, Law '32, of the varsity squad, served as coach for the season and sent his charges against the high school teams of the city in a number of debates.

EASTERN TEAM
Marks, Vasak, O'Rourke

The schedule, which was arranged by Captain Marks, contained some of the leading schools of the world: Oxford, Princeton, Harvard, Northwestern, Marquette, Detroit, Iowa University, Nebraska, Iowa State, Loyola of Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas Aggies, Drake, North Dakota University, Washington, Missouri, and Coe.

The schedule, results, and men participating:

November 22—Creighton defeated Oxford at Tech High auditorium by an audience vote, 1,008 to 468. Marks, O'Rourke, and Lipp.

January 7—Creighton defeated Missouri at Columbia by an audience decision. Blaes, Fitzgerald, and Kazlowsky.

The Blue-Jay

CURRENT with the aim of the majority of Annual staffs throughout the country, the 1930 Blue-Jay tried to maintain and improve, if possible, the standards as set by previous editions. This intention has been pursued by introducing several new lay-out features into the book, by the introduction of a theme depicted by artwork, by condensing and conserving space so that every possible inch was used, by putting all new engraving into every page, and by combining the ten departments of the University within one volume and into what may be truly called a University year-book.

Competition between the staffs of the various annuals becomes keener each year. Ideas must be new, varied and different. This necessitates an editorial plan without a previous pattern and yet which must be kept within the limit of the financial budget. In attaining this plan according to the budget the staff selected the very best printing, engraving, art work, and photography. Therefore, the 1930 Blue-Jay is released to the University as a whole that it may be accepted on a par with previous editions and at the same time compare favorably with the publications of other institutions.

Production of this Blue-Jay began during the summer of 1929. The skeleton of the book was prepared by the time school opened in the fall. Photographic work began immediately for the individual portrait sections and as time progressed and the various activities took form these likewise were recorded through the picture medium.

The Creightonian

THE Creightonian, student newspaper, published weekly under the supervision of the Students Union, not only gives the student journalist actual practice, but helps to weld the different colleges of the University into closer relations. With four paid editors and an advertising director, the publication kept a perfect record, appearing on schedule each week. The paper is published on Thursday morning, with dispatches being sent to all of the different colleges and affiliated institutions. A staff organization with representatives in each department insures the reader of a full coverage of campus news. Besides the regular staff of journalism students, members are found in the two hospitals, Duchesne, and the College of Saint Mary.

Although the school has no privately owned production plant, practical printing and make-up experience is obtained through co-operation of a local printing establishment. Work begins on Friday with the posting of assignments to the various staff members and continues until the final issuance, nearly the entire week being spent on the gleaning of news and the formation of a suitable appearing newspaper.

The results of the labors of the staff were compensated at the annual North Central Press Association convention held in Vermillion, South Dakota, in February, when the Creightonian brought back major honors. As a result of the convention,

Shadows

SHADOWS, the Creighton literary magazine is the meduim for the work of students interested in fiction, poetry and illustration. It is published six times during the year. Its contents, with few exceptions, is entirely the work of students.

Shadows for 1929-30 was marked for its unusual covers, and for the fact that illustrations made by students were extensively used. The Christmas issue, the March issue, which had a St. Patrick's day theme, and the May issue, were outstanding.

The finances of the magazine are controlled by the Students Union and its offices in the Union building. The editorial staff is appointed by the faculty moderator. The magazine is represented by selected students in each of the schools and colleges. During the year activities of the various colleges were described in articles in the magazine.

Shadows this year won high praise for the excellence of its short-stories and its verse. Of these, some were of a caliber to be printed in professional magazines. The magazine sponsored a poetry and short-story contest following a custom laid down several years ago. Cash prizes totaling sixty dollars were awarded. Miss Agnes Replier, a noted writer, acted as judge of the verse, and Mr. Harvey Newbranch, editor of the Omaha World-Herald, as judge of the short-stories. The stories were selected by a board consisting or Professors C. C. Charvat, H. F. Fore and A. H. Goesser.

In addition to the short-story and poetry contest, Shadows this year initiated a contest for the artists. Illustrations for covers were published and the students of the University allowed to vote for the best cover.

Duchesne Monthly

THE Duchesne Monthly, published by students at Duchesne College, is a literary magazine which has been in existence since 1925, when it was first issued under the name Pukwana. In September, 1928, it became the Duchesne Monthly. It features, in addition to college news, short stories, essays, book reviews, an alumnae section, and poetry.

The aim of the staff and student body in editing this publication is to reveal in its pages the principles for which the Religious of the Sacred Heart have always stood, and to stimulate interest among alumnae and students. Five hundred copies are printed each month, and they reach, besides students and alumnae, all the English-speaking houses of the Society throughout the world, including those in England, Australia, Scotland, Ireland, New Zealand, Japan, and China.

CHARLOTTE BRANNEN
Editor

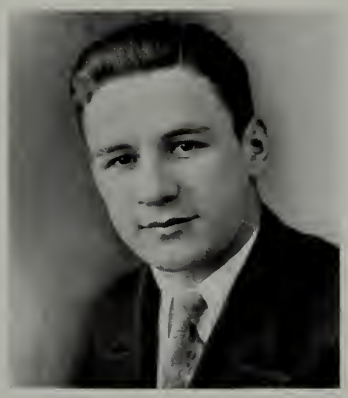

PUBLISHED monthly by the students of St. Mary's, the Golden Record is the official literary organ of the college. The circulation of the magazine has greatly increased since its inception in 1926 when but 500 copies were printed. From this small beginning it has grown to a circulation of 2,000 during the past year.

The students of the English department of the school are the main contributors to the magazine. From this department come most of the poetry, short stories, essays, and book reviews to be found in its contents. In addition, the Golden Record contains current news of each month.

The April issue, in the form of a special number, featured the pageant, "The Return of the Play Spirit to America." The elaborate art work of this number was one of the outstanding features. The drawings and plates were reproduced from prize winning drawings of students of the college and other schools of the Sisters of Mercy.

The Creighton Alumnus

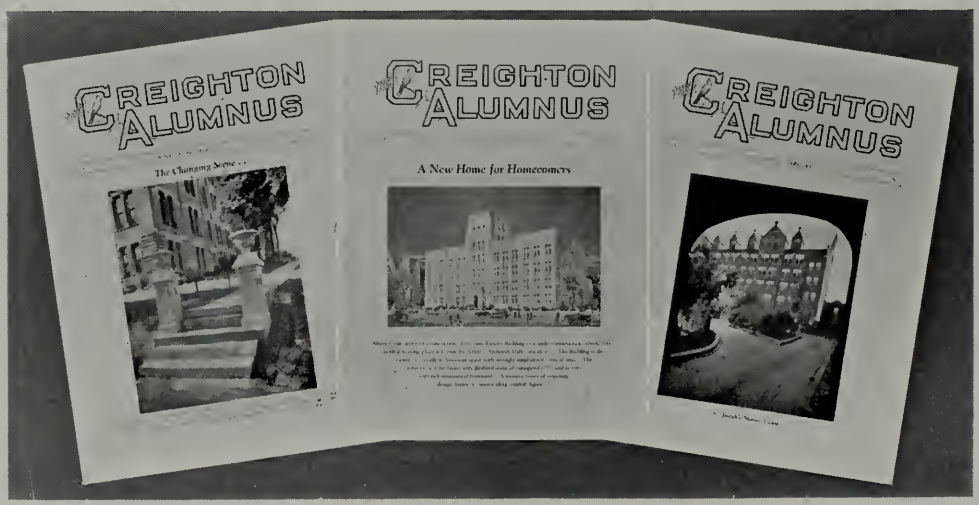

THE Creighton Alumnus, official publication of the Creighton University Alumni Association, is issued once each month during the school year by the central office of the Association, located in Omaha, and edited by Frank E. Pellegrin, secretary-treasurer of the Alumni Council.

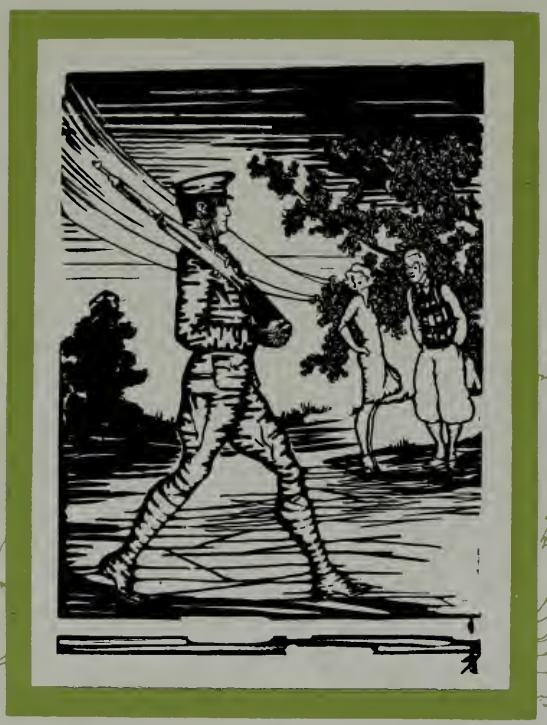

The purpose of the magazine is to bind the thousands of Creighton alumni more closely together by presenting currently the outstanding events in alumni and campus activity, and to keep each alumnus conversant with significant trends in Creighton progress.

The Creighton Alumnus is mailed to each member of the Alumni Association in good standing, and to other colleges and universities throughout the country. Thus it aids in bearing the name and ideals of Creighton not only into the homes of graduates and former students, but also into the offices of other institutions of higher learning, wherever it may be of assistance or inspiration.

The magazine was given honorable mention in the "Annual Report of the Sixteenth Confernce of the American Alumni Council," which commented specifically on "a set of editorials with a refreshing crispness of style published in the Creighton Alumnus."

An outstanding feature of the magazine during the past six months has been a monthly article by one of the members of the Alumni Council on some problem of particular interest to Alumni.

ROTC

THE Reserve Officers Training Corps is a part of the Organized Reserves of the United States Army, created by the National Defense Act of 1916. Its purpose is to train students during the times of peace so that in times of national conflict they will be able to train and lead men in national defense. As the R. O. T. C. was not able to supply enough men during the World War, it was supplanted by the Students Army Training Corps, with all the colleges and universities in the country as members. Creighton was one of the many universities with such a unit, where many students were trained, then sent away as officers either overseas or to the various camps in the country to train recruits. After the war this organization was abandoned and in its place the R. O. T. C. was again established. The Corps at Creighton was started in January, 1919, under the direction of Major Corbet Hoffman, detailed by the government to serve as professor of military science and tactics. At this time the enrollment was 136 members of the basic corps and one member in the advanced corps. Major Hoffman was assisted by one other officer and by two sergeants. In 1921 the first member of the advanced corps received his commission as a second lieutenant in the Organized Reserves of the United States Army.

In 1923 Major Hoffman was relieved by Major Francis B. Brannon. Immediately Major Brannon put in a system of competition between the different units of the battalion. In 1923 and 1924 he furthered this spirit of competition by offering a target rifle to the student scoring the highest in rifle marksmanship, and a sabre to the member of the graduating class that stood the highest in the class. He presented a guidon of the University colors, each month, to the company that stood highest in general efficiency.

FRANK E. BROKAW
Captain Infantry

Major George R. Hicks was sent to relieve Major Brannon in 1926, and since that time he has increased the spirit of competition to the highest pitch. He started field meets for the unit, then later, to insure more competition, he had the senior unit of the University compete against the junior unit of the High School. Awards were given to the winners of the individual contests and the winners of the platoon and company events. With the erection of the stadium the rifle range was moved from the squash courts in the gymnasium to a place under the stadium. Rifle teams were formed and awards were given to the winners. During the summer camps for the R. O. T. C. at Fort Crook the Creighton members have carried off many of the major awards. In 1927 a Creighton man won the highest honor of the camp, that of the most proficient and the best cadet in the camp. In 1928 Creighton sent two of the three members of the rifle team from the camp to the national rifle meet at Camp Perry, Ohio, and again last year they had a member on the team. Each year the members have brought back many awards from Camp Perry.

Major Hicks has interested many Omaha business concerns and civic organizations in the unit at Creighton, and as a result they sponsor the parades that are held during the summer. Many of the organizations give individual prizes for the best private and for the best officer. The officer receives a sabre as acknowledgment of his service. One of the most coveted awards is that one given for the company that shows the most efficiency. Major Hicks has also desired to give his cadets an idea of war, so each year the unit holds a sham battle. The use of tear gas and the smoke screen is demonstrated in order to make the battle more realistic. Sometime during the year the graduates of the advanced course hold a mock trial when they court-martial one of the members.

This year, Major Hicks, in order to further the interest of the basic students in the advanced corps, organized a basic militaly society. This society has made application to become a member of the Pan-Hellenic Council. It is separate from the advanced corps fraternity and the main purpose is to create interest in the advanced corps and to act as a special escort to the honorary colonel.

The R. O. T. C. Band has had the greatest success in its career. It has appeared over one of the local broadcasting stations, and has given many concerts both on the stage of local theatres and on football trips.

Since 1921, when only one member graduated from the advanced corps, today there are 133 members of the advanced corps who have received commissions as second lieutenants in the Organized Reserves. Today the total enrollment of the unit is 301 basic members and twenty-six advanced corps members, of which nine will receive commissions as second lieutenants.

Members of the unit find little time hanging heavily on their hands, as all of the drill periods are taken up with a series of continued activity throughout the year. In fact, activitiy seems to be the by-word of the group.

SECOND YEAR ADVANCED CORPS

Beginning soon after the opening of the school term in the fall, the new men are checked over, given uniforms and assigned to their respective companies, with the older men helping officials. All men of the University must have two years training to become eligible for graduation. Those already having the required training before entering Creighton are eligible for the advanced courses of instruction, of which many take advantage.

MILDRED O'BRIEN
Honorary Colonel

As the first big activity of the year, came the Nebraska Diamond Jubilee parade last October, when the entire Creighton R. O. T. C. participated. The corps marched the whole parade length, a distance of five miles, and from reports entering the headquarters later, provided an unusual spectacle of discipline and marching. The R. O. T. C. Band also took part in the march and added much to the appearance of the unit.

Approximately five other outside parades were held by the combined companies before the inclement weather set in, with the unit marching to various points throughout the city for their exercises. After the bad weather set in the unit took up its drill headquarters in the gymnasium. Two of the three hours of drill were devoted to instruction in scouting, patrolling, first-aid, musketry fire, automatic rifle drill and other such activities. The third hour was devoted to actual drill work with the squads, platoons and companies.

After the close of the winter season the unit again returns out-of-doors and holds a series of long hikes to acquaint the men in the problem of long forced marches. An added attraction to the outside drills is the annual field meet during which athletes of each of the companies vie for honors of the field.

ROTC

FOR the past three years the Dental Unit has been under the direction of Major Eugene Milburne of the Dental Corps of the United States Army. This year seventeen members will receive commissions as first lieutenants of the Dental Reserve Corps of the Army.

The course of study as outlined in the Dental Unit is quite similar to that of the medical department of the army, and is chiefly concerned with questions of sanitation and hygiene, especially to oral infections such as "trench mouth." Besides these, a thorough understanding of chemical warfare, especially in regard to poisonous gases and their effects, is included in the course, due to the frequency with which dentists in the service come in contact with such emergencies.

ROBERT J. CLAREY

His Majesty
King Creighton VIII

Junior-Senior Prom

TO the strains of Art Kassell and his "Castles of the Air" recording orchestra and welcomed by all loyal subjects, King Creighton VIII and his consort were formally crowned at the the Junior-Senior Prom on the evening of April 25th in the grand ballroom of the Fontenelle hotel.

From the twelve princes and princesses, representing every department of the University, the King and Queen were announced at exactly 10:30 after all guests were assembled. The choice of King Creighten VIII fell upon Robert J. Clarey, Commerce, and that of his Queen upon Mae Fisher, St. Joseph's nurse, representing the School of Law.

From all standpoints the 1930 edition of the Prom far excelled all previous dances of this nature. Among the outstanding features of this climaxing social event were the announcement of the King and Queen, the grand coronation march and the special ballet dance of thirty girls. Dancing began at 9:30 and continued until 2 a. m., interrupted only by the coronation and ballet ceremonies.

PRINCES OF THE ROYAL COURT

MAE B. FISHER
Her Majesty the Queen

As the time for the ceremony of the grand march approached, the subjects formed two lines, maintained by officers of the R. O. T. C. unit, in preparation for the march of the princes and princesses. At the appointed time Lord High Chancellor Arthur Mullen, Jr., Law senior, issued the edict to the reigning governors. Following the announcement, the princes and princesses entered and placed themselves on either side of the throne. At this point of the program the Chancellor singled out the new King and Queen who were formally presented and crowned.

The twelve princes of the court were: Hugh M. P. Higgins and Harry Whitaker from the Arts college, James McNally and Robert Clarey of the Commerce college, John Courtney and William E. O'Grady from the School of Medicine, Louis Trautman and Leo Ripp from the Dentistry school, John McLoon and Hawthorne Arey from the Law school, and Clifford Chase and George E. Maloney from the Pharmacy college.

The princesses selected were: Arts, Josephine Prendergast and Irene Stafford; Commerce, Gene Mari Vana and Catherine Monoghan; Medicine, Lenore Greteman

MISS MILDRED O'BRIEN
Honorary Colonel

Military Ball

THE 1930 Military Ball, sponsored by Chi Delta Chi, honorary military fraternity, was held in the Granada room of the Knights of Columbus club on the evening of February 12. The ball was marked by its formality, with a military atmosphere prevailing throughout the evening.

The feature of the dance was the announcement and presentation of Miss Mildred O'Brien as honorary colonel of the Creighton unit of the Reserve Officers Training Corps for the year. Presented beneath a row of arched sabers that flashed in the numerous spotlights, Miss O'Brien became the honorary officer, while all military students stood at attention.

Activities for the evening began at 6 o'clock with a banquet at the Fontenelle hotel. Those present included the members of Chi Delta Chi, the new and old honorary colonels, Major G. R. Hicks, Captain von Mohl Dyer, and Captain Frank E. Brokaw, all of the R. O. T. C. staff. During the course of the banquet Miss O'Brien was introduced to the members of the fraternity and presented with a sword as token of her new position.

Promptly at 8:30 the Creighton R. O. T. C. Band, under the direction of Daniel Slezinger, began a concert that continued until 9 o'clock while guests were entering the ballroom. Amid a flourish by the drums and bugles of the band, the new honorary colonel was formally presented by Cadet Captain John Byrne.

Union Dances

EDWARD D. MURPHY

EXCLUDING the Junior Prom, three student dances were given by the Students Union during the past year, with representative attendance at each.

The first dance of the Creighton social season was the "Frosh Frolic," the school's official welcome to all incoming students. First year men were admitted free of charge upon presentation of the traditional green freshman head-piece. The new men, as a result of the party, not only became better acquainted with their fellow students but were initiated into Creighton social life at the party.

"The Bluejay Ball" came next on the social calender at the Knights of Columbus club, as a fete to the football team for their efforts on the gridiron for the 1929 season. This dance held a special significance this year because the football team was the sole group honored, where before all the athletic teams were guests. Members of the squad were introduced individually to the audience by the cheer leaders, who led a series of school yells for the team. Music for the evening was furnished by Randall's Royal orchestra, premier band of Omaha. All members of the football squads, both varsity and freshmen, were admitted free, as guests of the Union.

Combining all of the ideas of former successes, the Union staged as the third party the annual "Carnival Dance" at the Knights of Columbus club on the evening of February 19. With Randall's orchestra again playing and an abundance of confetti and streamers available, this party proved to be the most successful of the Union dances, with exception to the Prom.

Pan-Hellenic Dance

CREIGHTON'S eighteen recognized fraternities gathered for their annual Pan-Hellenic dance on the evening of March 4, at the Knights of Columbus club in the Granada ballroom. All of the fraternities were well represented to the extent that approximately 350 couples attended.

The dance was featured by the presentation of gold keys to members of the Creighton Pan-Hellenic Council by the Rev. J. A. Herbers, S. J., who in turn received an honorary key from Laurence Lucas, president of the Pan-Hellenic Council. Those receiving keys were A. T. Fiore, Robert R. Evans, George F. Bickley, Martin L. Deakins, Paul L. Kildee, Fritz Kampf, Ray Van Overschelde, Harold R. Newell, William O. Steele, William I. Stalmaster, Reynold J. Ferrari, Herbert P. Virnig, Morris H. Brodkey, Robert J. Drake, Louis E. Lipp, John S. Weber, and Laurence A. Lucas.

Guests, who were limited to fraternity men and pledges, danced to music by the College Club Orchestra. Favors of red carnations were given to all girls attending.

The hall was decorated with a scheme by which each fraternity placed their representative shield upon the wall and spotlights were thrown upon the shield of the group to whom the different dances were dedicated.

Chaperons for the evening were Dean Howard C. Newton from the College of Pharmacy, Dean Floyd E. Walsh from the College of Commerce, Professor Hugh F. Gillespie from the School of Law, Dr. Benjamin Ewing from the School of Medicine, and Dr. Emery La Porte from the College of Dentistry.

Campus Groups

ACHIEVING success, the Creightons returned to Omaha and became prominently identified in the business and industrial life of the city. They erected many buildings in the commercial districts. Banking and stock raising received their attention.

The many charities and philanthropies of these two families subsequently followed. One of these was the endowment of the Creighton University. This latter and other acts of humanitarism shall ever remain as monuments to their memory.

Organizations

The Creighton Press Club

THE Creighton Press Club, a progeny of the past school year, had its inception as a result of the growing demand for a campus society to embrace the common interests of students engaging in the various fields of writing.

Accordingly, after considerable work on the part of various individuals, the club was formed with sixteen men forming the charter members. The primary purpose of the club is to foster interest in school publications and journalism with the ultimate end to enter a national journalistic fraternity.

Meetings of the group were taken over to round-table discussion of journalistic problems not only local but in other college newspapers, magazines and year books. Featuring some of the meetings were prominent speakers and authorities on journalism who explained from actual experience just what the young journalist must face upon graduation.

Activities of the club were many, considering its infancy and number of members. A special assembly period was sponsored by the group during February at which Mr. J. H. Furay, vice president of the United Press, spoke on the task of a newsgatherer. A club banquet and a Press frolic were also given by the club as the first of promised annual affairs.

As its first effort to standardize student publication style at Creighton the group published a style book in which all possible rules and regulations as to college style of news writing were assembled. With the organization growing and its real need evidenced by its progress on lifting the publications of the school to a higher plane it has become another step in Creighton progress.

Dramatic Club
St. Joseph's Training School

THE Dramatic Club of St. Joseph's Hospital was newly organized last fall, but the enthusiasm of the student nurses for dramatics firmly established it as a permanent organization at the hospital. The productions staged during the past year were under the direction of Laurence Welch, a junior in the Creighton Law School, and Mary-Madeleine Lanphier of Duchesne College.

As the first efforts of the infant club, three one-act plays were produced during the year. Besides the entertainment furnished, the plays gave actual training to the players, who were chosen from the regular student nurses.

The first play, "The Rehearsal," was a play within a play, concerning the efforts of a cast of eight girls endeavoring to work out the details of an amateur production. It was presented on November 27th at the Nurses' Home. The second play, staged on the evening of December 23rd, was "Her Aunt From California," with a cast of six students. It is the plan of the group to add to the number of productions during the next season.

Members of the club are: Ida C. Borth, Marie Cunningham, Florence Darcy, Romana O. Denkinger, Mary A. Karney, Marie Kempker, Gertrude M. Longeway, Julia A. Newvirth, Thelma O'Kief, Josephine Prendergast, Florence Rivard, Irene M. Sramek, Marguerite A. Schricker, Mary Smith, Helen M. Tushla, Mary C. Walsh, Zella Williams, Louise E. Werner.

Drama Club
Duchesne College

THE Drama Club at Duchesne was organized in March, when the Little Theater movement at the college was definitely launched. It was formed for all those interested in the various phases of play production, not for the purpose of training professionals, but to encourage the expression of art and increase interest in drama. Acting, directing, property, and make-up are studied by the club members.

Three one-act plays, presented by the club in April, were selected and produced by the directors, Lucille McGrath, Virginia Cooper and Mary-Madeleine Lanphier, who have aimed at the study and reproduction of the best drama.

"The Man in the Bowler Hat," a comedy, was produced by Lucille McGrath. Members of the cast were Eleanor Welsh, Marie Mann, Edith McShane, Marion Kent, Lucile Barry, Therese Higgins and Ruth Nothomb. Virginia Cooper directed a phantasy, "The Maker of Dreams," which required three players, Mary Alice Gillin, Jane Shirley and Wyliette Heald. "The Last of the Lowries," a tragedy, was handled by Mary-Madeleine Lanphier. Catherine Gibbons, Mary Fogarty, Bernadine Hunker and Virginia Mancuso played in the production.

An extensive course in dramatic art will be offered at Duchesne next year, with dramatic production and voice culture featured by the director in charge.

Children of Mary
Duchesne College

THE Sodality of the Children of Mary at Duchesne College is a branch of the first Sodality of the Children of Mary ever organized. It dates from the time of Saint Madeleine Barat, i. e., the early part of the nineteenth century, and is now widely extended, having a center in every convent of the Sacred Heart throughout the world. The sodality has its own statutes and rules and is enriched with almost as many spiritual favors as the great congregation of the Prima Primaria in Rome, to which it has been affiliated.

All students of Duchesne College are eligible to membership in the Sodality of the Children of Mary. The medal that each receives, gives them entrance and welcome into every convent of the Sacred Heart, no matter in what part of the world they may be. Moreover, they form the nuclues of the "Ladies' Children of Mary," that part of the sodality which is made up of former students and other women whose object is not only their own spiritual progress but the advancement of every religious and civic activity within the sphere of their influence.

Sodality
St. Joseph's Training School

THE Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary was organized at St. Joseph's Hospital in 1923 by the Rev. F. X. Reilly, S. J., of the Creighton faculty. Entering into the eighth year of its existence the group has risen from a small organization to one with many members.

Among the different activities and devotions performed by the Sodality are the singing of hymns, the recitation of various religious devotions and the attendance of a special sermon every Sunday.

Twice a year, on December 28 and at the close of the May devotions, the Sodality nominates and elects their officers for the next season. Officers now presiding are: First Prefect, Josephine Prendergast; Second Prefect, Marie Cunningham; Secretary, Anna Marie Waldman.

Members of the Sodality are: Katherine Borsik, Mae Brogan, Anna Browne, Mary Burns, Dorothy Carr, Ruth Conner, Mary Cosgrove, Marie Cunningham, Margaret Cunningham, Alice Deegan, Marie Falcone, Mae Fisher, Mary Frank, Flossie Franken, Adelaide Harenza, Elizabeth Hauser, Rosebud Heitz, Olive Hennes, Mary Henry, Helen Jelinek, Barbara Kabourek, Katherine Kennedy, Mary Jane Kettle, Rosanna Kirchner, Anna Kranda, Marie Kruse, Lorene Lyhene, Evelyn McAuliffe, Genevieve McMahon, Theresa Marshall, Elizabeth Murphy, Elsie Nagel, Genevieve O'Hern, Grace O'Neil, Lucille Peterson, Lillian Piskach, Josephine Prendergast, Hildegarde Schaecher, Ann Shaeffer, Nora Scott, Genevieve Van Ackeran, Amelia Vandewille, Mary C. Sodality
St. Catherine's Hospital

UNDER the direction of the Rev. John J. Keefe, S. J., of the Creighton faculty, and comprising the entire Catholic student body of the hospital, the Saint Catherine's Sodality has become one of the outstanding organizations of the affiliated schools of Creighton.

Regular meetings are held under elected officers, who supervise the activities of the group with the direction of the moderator. The Sodality engages in different religious devotions, such as the singing of hymns, and the attendance at special sermons in a body. The singing of the group is one of the features of the student nurses' chapel services.

Members for the year include: Lillian Bichert, Elizabeth Booth, Angela Cavanaugh, Mary Coyle, Helen Cunningham, Frances Dimig, Ida Doll, Eileen Enright, Mary Fassbinder, Mildred Higgins, Sophie Hambek, Esther Heafey, Catherine Holst, Aurelia Koenig, Mary Krautkremer, Madeleine McEvoy, Lorena Lorenz, Rose Madden, Elizabeth Mayers, Slyvia Michals, Bernice Murphy, Mary Mylet.

Children of Mary
College of St. Mary

THE Children of Mary, the spiritual organization of the College of St. Mary, aims to honor Our Lady, and to promote the spiritual advancement of its members. Membership is open to all Catholic students of the college. Reception of new members takes place annually on December 8th, the feast of the Immaculate Conception.

During the present school year, Miss Lunora Kirkpatrick has fulfilled the office of prefect, Miss Frances Miller the office of secretary, and Miss Adelaide O'Keefe the office of assistant. In accordance with the national sodality movement, the organization is composed of five committees, each under the direction of a chairman. The chairmen this year were the Misses Marie Oliverius, Patricia Harrahill, Mary Emilie Flynn, Lillian Chapek and Frances Wise. Meetings of the Children of Mary were held weekly throughout the year.

The annual May Day event of the College is sponsored by the Children of Mary. Three representative members of the organization are chosen by vote to take part as queens in the crowning ceremonies of Our Lady.

Commandant's Hundred

ON December 7th, 1929, upon the suggestion of Major Hicks, eight representative military basic students were chosen from the four companies of the battalion to form a military club or fraternity for the members of the basic corps. The expressed purpose of the organization was to create a comprehensive body from which the Major could make his selections for officers in the advanced group.

The eight students, who were duly elected as the officers when the club became a working organization, immediately set out upon securing a tentative constitution and ritual, and chartering members to the club.

Some thirty members were chartered. They are:

Joseph Benneker, Norbert Berens, Donald Boyd, Clement Byrnes, Robert Christiansen, Joseph Claus, William Dalton, John C. Egan, James Flynn, Francis E. Hohman, Charles Kirchner, Zane J. Thompson, Donald Wilson, Wilbur Werner, LeRoy Lamb, Robert Lett, Patrick Lynam, John McCormick, James F. O'Neil, Charles E. Osberg, Paul Redinger, James Roach, H. J. Roddy, Robert Rohr, Hugh Schwab, James Shackelford, Edward E. Suchy, John F. Swift, Clarence Wittler, Clarence Bornhorst, Bernard Vinardi, Francis Monroe, Albert Klein, Edmund Frohardt.

At this publication considerable work is being done to turn the club into a fraternity, and it is planned to attain this aim before the end of the present semester.

The Knights of the Bluejay

THE "loud speaker" at all Creighton basketball games is a group of men composed of students from every department of the university. This organization is called the Knights of the Bluejay. The Knights, who have evolved from two similar organizations of the past, are sponsored by the Students Union in co-operation with the athletic department. Immediately preceding the Knights were the Roaring Seventy, which were preceded by the Blue Loons. The group was organized by William Beattie, who was its first president and who was re-elected last fall.

The Knights initiated forty-five new members into the organization prior to the athletic season and the total membership is now 109. The only requirements demanded of the new men are a strong pair of lungs, plenty of school spirit, enthusiasm and initiative. The mettle of each candidate for membership is tested by a gruesome probation week and a thorough initiation.

In addition to furnishing the noise and school spirit at all games with various forms of entertainment, the Knights sponsor various activities on the campus. At homecoming the Knights served the barbecue dinner and acted as guides at all points of congestion throughout the day.

The Knights of the Bluejay are to the university what an entertainment committee is to every well organized club.

Oratorical Association

THE Creighton Oratorical Association is the oldest organization on the campus, being organized in the early days of the University.

The Association is dedicated to the spoken work and its aims are to bring out and develop talent in oratory, debating, dramatics and extempore speaking as well as encourage these arts.

The activities of the organization are varied. Each year it sponsors special assemblies at which members present a program of oratory. This year it also undertook to extend these programs to the affiliated schools of Creighton and entertainments were given at St. Joseph's hospital, St. Catherine's hospital and Duchesne College.

An intra-mural debate tournament is another feature of the organization. Debate teams representing classes, fraternities and other organizations participate. Many of the debaters for these teams are secured from the Oratorical Society itself since its weekly meetings are featured with debates, interpretative readings, orations and short plays.

The outstanding event sponsored by the Association each year is the all-university contest in oratory, the winner of which receives a gold medal and the right to represent Creighton in the National Intercollegiate Oratorical contest.

Officers of the Society during the past year are: Emmet Blaes, president; Leo Smith, vice president, and Walter McEveny, secretary. The Rev. Charles M. Ryan, S. J., is faculty moderator.

Le Cercle Francais

THE French Club was organized at Creighton in 1925 under the supervision of Dr. A. A. Klammer, professor of modern languages. Since its organization it has become one of the most active clubs on the campus.

The purpose of the club, as carried out at its regular meetings, is to develop and increase interest in French life, language, customs, traditions and history, to improve the facility in speaking French fluently and to put to practical use the French learned in the classroom. With this aim in mind French is spoken exclusively at the meetings and an effort is made by the club to vitalize the study of French by bringing the student into contacts such as the singing of French songs, and dramatizations, which might be unsuited for classroom work.

The regular meetings are featured by illustrated lectures on the beauties of France and on the buildings and parks of Paris. Programs of the club also feature the reading of French anecdotes aloud to the group, the presentation of French plays, progressive conversation or continued story and the readings of French folk dances. French on the phonograph has been a novelty introduced this year.

Present officers of the club are: Bernel Deslauriers, president; Thomas J. Nuckolls, vice president, and Harold Moore, secretary and treasurer. Dr. A. A. Klammer and Prof. M. Howard are the faculty moderators.

The Pasteur Club

THE Pasteur Club, the first established science club on the Creighton campus, was organized in the spring of 1929 by a group of students who harbored a special interest in biology. The Club is an organization of individuals whose purpose is to aim at a more than ordinary degree of interest in biology and to benefit both themselves and the science by meetings and discussions. The name of the organization is in honor of Louis Pasteur, pioneer in the field of biology.

Meetings are held once a month, during which members discuss problems of a biological nature, with authority thrown on the subjects by prominent scientists and doctors.

Examples of subjects talked upon during the past year include "Cells," "The Scope of Bacteriology" and "Nervous Disorders."

Much of the success of the Club can be accredited to Prof. Ivan D. Farnsworth, sponsor of the group.

Members of the organization for the 1920-30 year are:

John Eagan, president; Loren Collins, vice president; Loyola Kaiser, secretary and treasurer, and Clement Boehler, business manager.

Aldred Adelman, Fred Ackerman, Robert Brosse, William Bassett, James Benneker, George Ballinger, Raymond Brink, Maurice Blacker, Clemmet Byrnes, Francis Cudahy, Fairfax Dashiel, Parnel Durr, Peter David, Ben Foley, James Flynn, Raymond Goedert, Dr. Von Gillem, Thomas Havel, Adolph Kaffka, Joseph Kabeiesman.

The Spanish Club

ORGANIZED in 1925, the Spanish Club is at present one of the largest of the language club of Creighton. During the five years of its existence the Club under the direction of F. J. Solis, assistant professor of Spanish and moderator of the group, has been active in arousing interest and appreciation of the Spanish language among the student body.

The purpose of the Club is to give students of Spanish a more practical knowledge of the language than can be gained in the classroom. With this in view, discussion at the bi-monthly meetings is directed by the moderator in the Spanish language. Reports and short speeches in Spanish together with historical discussions of Spain and the Spanish people, are the procedures of the meetings.

The constitution of the Club is written in Spanish and the minutes of all meetings are kept in that language.

Membership in the Club is limited to second and third year students of Spanish. First year students who show special ability or interest in the Spanish language are admitted.

Present officers of the Club are: Wendell Dwyer, president; Edwin Lehnen, vice president; Mary Wall, secretary, and Raymond Finnegan, reporter.

Societas Latina

UNDER the above name the Classical Club was reorganized this year and a new constitutiin adopted. The entire advanced Latin class signed as charter members in the first semester, but on account of the requirement that members maintain a grade of eighty-five per cent the number was cut to nine for the second semester.

Societas Latina, unlike the other language clubs, is not open to all students of the University who study Latin, but admits only advanced students who will be benefited by work in accordance with its object, to give men interested in Latin an opportunity to acquaint themselves with Roman history and authors generally not seen within two years of advanced Latin, points which have been successfully followed out in the first year of the Club's existence.

With John Gorman as president, Fred Mackenbrock vice president, and Maurice Langdon secretary, the first semester was decidely satisfactory. Beginning with Dr. Jacks' lecture on the value of classical studies, the programs featured papers and talks given by the members on Roman life, customs and amusements, the development of Roman architecture, and the history of Rome.

The second semester brought to the members an opportunity to read Plautus' comedy, "Duo Captivi," which was a source of interest as well as acquaintance with this comparatively little known author. In addition, some attention was given to the technique of translation and a few of the finer points of Latin composition.

The present members are: M. Van Ackern, president; B. Deslauriers, vice president; D. Boyd, secretary. F. Mackenbrock, W. Longeway, F. Miller, T. J. McCarthy, C. Kirchner and L. Smith. Mr. George P. Prendergast is faculty modrator.

The Mathematics Club

THE Mathematics Club is the youngest organization on the Arts College campus. It was organized in the fall of 1929 under the sponsorship of Professor A. K. Bettinger, head of the mathematics department at Creighton. The purpose of the Club is twofold. First, it is for the benefit of the department of mathematics itself, as it brings together all students of advanced study of the subject and such under-classmen as may be interested. It stimulates interest and develops a respect and feeling as well as an understanding for mathematics.

For the student member, aside from the scholastic benefits, the group has proven to be a connecting link between the theoretical mathematics of the classroom and the practical mathematics of the modern business world.

Meetings are held bi-monthly, consisting of smokers and discussions between the members and the reading of papers from some prominent business or professional man. Among speakers for the past year were well known civil, electrical and chemical engineers, and doctors and statisticians.

The Club operates under a constitution and a semi-permanent board of officers. The sixteen charter members and officers are: President, Wendell Dwyer; vice president, Harry Whitaker; treasurer, R. J. Myers.

Ambrose Kilday, Henry Sterling, Joseph Flynn, Robert Keenan, John O'Brien, John Gorman, Joe Claus, William Whitaker, Stephen Dieringer, Frank Marrow, Torrence Kay, A. K. Bettinger, William C. Doyle, S. J.

Chamber of Commerce

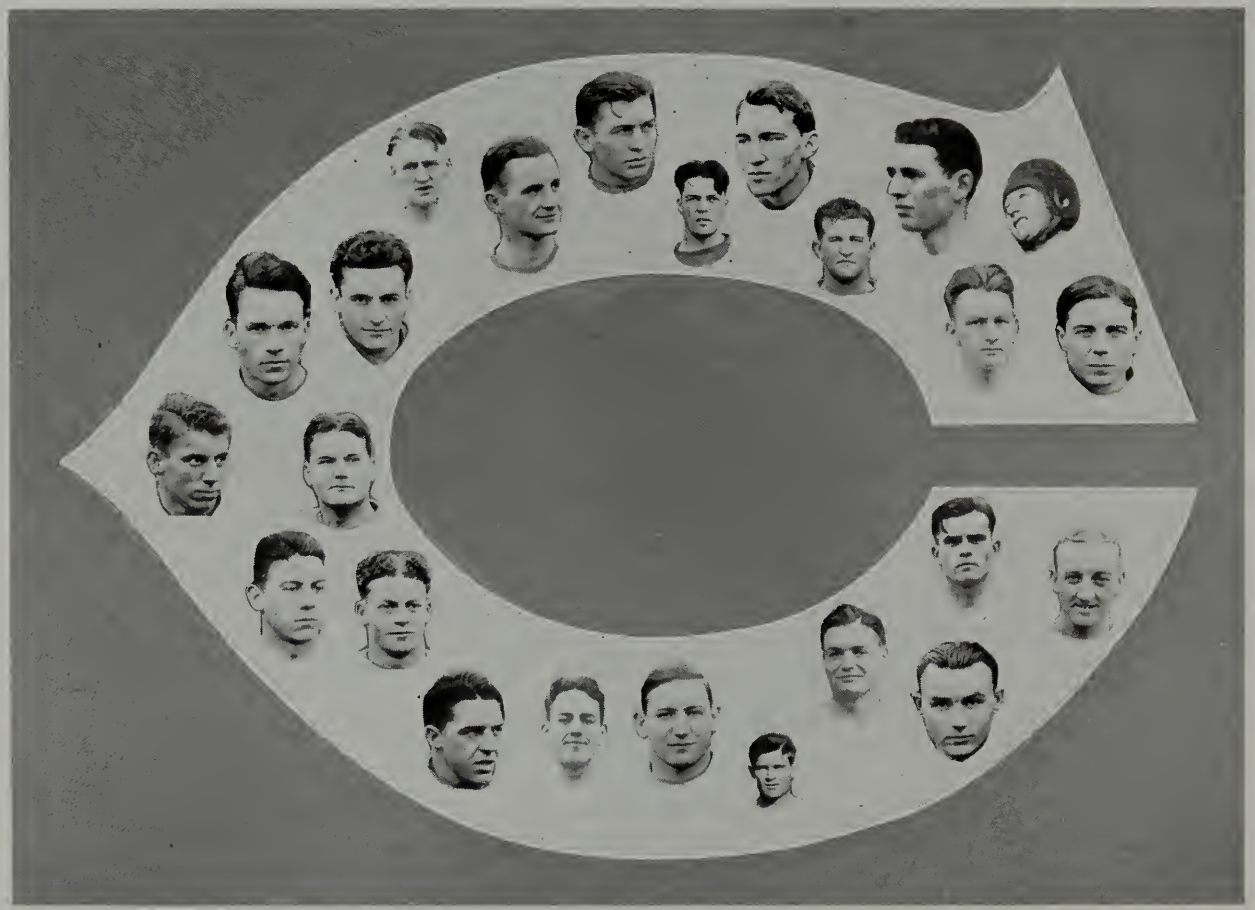

THE Creighton Chamber of Commerce, honorary organization of the College of Commerce, Finance and Journalism, was established on November 26, 1928, to meet several needs of the department. Its purposes are to encourage and reward scholarship, leadership and accomplishment along the lines of business and journalistic activity among the students. Outside of these purposes it forms an effective working unit for the promotion and execution of such student activities as are conducive to the best interests of the Commerce school.

The members of the Commerce faculty appoint the students to active membership in the Chamber. The selections are based on high scholarship, leadership, and on manifestation of interest in the activities of the college, combined with accomplishments. Four members are selected from each class and the remainder are chosen from the college at large, making a group of twenty-four members.

The Chamber promotes yearly three functions for the benefit of the entire student body of the Commerce school. First, an all-Commerce banquet to promote a spirit of good-fellowship among the students. Second, a journalism luncheon, held for the benefit of all students interested in journalism, which helps to foster writing and form a closer contact to all. And thirdly, an all-Commerce dinner dance, a social function which is in the nature of a final farewell to the graduating class.

Besides these activities the members of the Chamber sponsored the organization of the Accountant's Round Table last year as a subsidiary to the Chamber of Commerce. This group, with the purpose of discussion of round-table accounting problems, has proved valuable to all concerned.

"C" Club

THE "C" Club is the honorary athletic organization of the University. All members of the Club are lettermen in either football, basketball, swimming, or track. The various men who receive athletic monograms in major sports are automatically placed on the nomination board to be voted upon by members for admittance.

Each year the new men are voted upon and those receiving admittances go through a strenuous initiation to test their morale and grit. This year the Club embraces a roster of twenty-nine athletes.

Besides the initiation the main function of the Club is to give the annual "Hard Times Party" with all University men invited to attend. The night is featured by the beggarly appearance of all attending, and the selection of the Hobo Queen of the year. The Hobo Queen is always an athelete and the winner of the prize for the most unique dress. This dance is one of the genuine fun-fests of the year and is looked forward to with pleasure by the whole student body.

Students' Spiritual Council

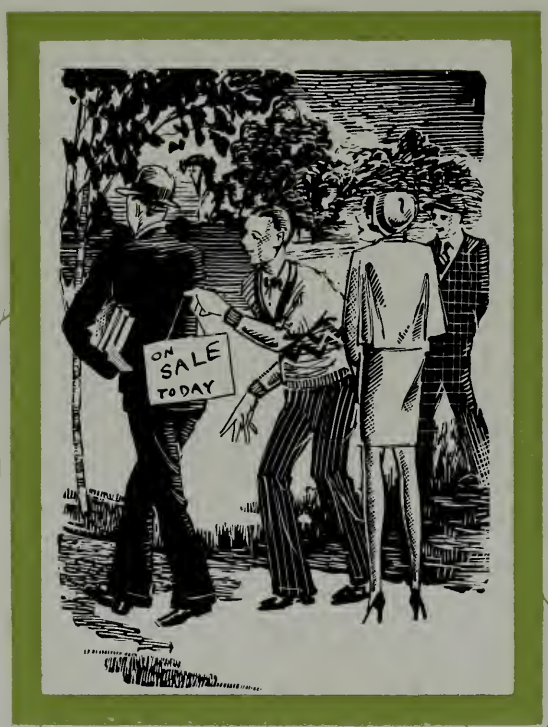

THE Students' Spiritual Council was organized at the Creighton University in January, 1927, according to the plan outlined by the Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S. J., of St. Louis, editor of Queen's Work, official organ of sodalities throughout the United States.

Members of the Council are chosen from all the colleges and schools of the University. These members are assigned to committees, which are under the direction of chairmen, who form a central or directing committee. Committees formed in this Council are: Eucharistic, Publicity, Our Lady's, Mission, Speakers, Catholic Literature, and Catholic Thought.

Its purpose is to work for the personal worth and holiness of the Catholic students in the University and to train its members and all students, who agree to ally themselves to its principles, for Catholic social action throughout the entire world. No mission field on the uttermost confines of the globe is beyond its endeavors.

Since its formation it has functioned very efficiently, averaging in one year nearly two hundred letters or articles in the public press, on Catholic thought and principles. Each year clothes, toys and candy are collected and shipped to the Dakota Indians. It maintains a book rack of fifty booklets and religious magazines in the University library, and a similar one in the reading room of the Knights of Columbus club. It encourages all spiritual activities in the University and is constantly alert to increase and encourage practices that aid in developing better Christian character.

. . . you'll want your own x-ray unit

FREQUENT use of the x-ray is one of the ways by which the public is learning to distinguish the progressive dentist. More and more the leaders in the profession are installing their own x-ray units.

They find that making their own radiographs enables them to render better service, to make their time more profitable. They soon become expert in interpretation. And this ownership of an x-ray unit proves to be not an expense, but an investment from which they get a steady yield.

The Victor CDX Dental X-ray Unit has been a great factor in creating this vogue for individual ownership. The Victor CDX hangs suspended from the wall. It is electrically safe. Both transformer and tube, insulated in oil, are enclosed in the tube head. There is no high tension current exposed anywhere. You and your patient can touch the CDX anywhere while it is in operation. There is no danger of shock.

Let us send you the facts drawn from the experience of successful practitioners about this modern unit. It makes radiography almost as simple as photography. As you start out, you cannot afford to be without this important tool of your profession. Ask us for details of monthly payment plan.

Awaiting the class of '30

Seen through the time-veiling perspective of college life it seems impossible that four years have passed since the class of '30 matriculated. But in the turbulent world outside enough progress has developed to fill a century.

Notable have been the changes in home building. From stark utility, plumbing and heating fixtures have been transformed into objects of beauty. New designs, new refinements, and iridescent colors have been evolved.

When the time comes for them to plan their homes, members of the class of '30 are cordially invited to the Crane Exhibit Rooms where these new fixtures and fittings for bathrooms, kitchens, and laundries are displayed.

The Blue-Jay again comes to bat with one of its numerous scoops in this intimate portrait of Lizzy Russell searching for Moots in the Moot Court Room. Besides being garrulous, Lizzy is often chided for talking too much in the wrong place e. g. Church, Sunday School and Art Reviews, not to mention any one of a dozen shows. Her principal food is toast and coffee in large quantities with a liberal hasher of eggs and sides of bacon. "I believe that the battleship waistline is coming back," said Miss Russell here tonight before a group of Associated Press correspondents. "You may quote me as saying that there is entirely too much attention being paid to psittacosis and the straw vote and not enough to the other important national foolers like Did Bryan Run For The Pure Love of Running? The way I got my first million," continued Miss Russell, "is novel at any rate. I used to send in the wise sayings of little children into the papers and usually they would slip me five bucks for each one of them. That's not so hard to get because you can figure it out for yourself." Miss Russell wore a blue smudge tocque with grey junk on the sides and her dress was an essemble of peach chitterlings with pecot edgings of tulle and old gold. From a distance of ten feet people were able to look in her direction with the aid of smoked glasses and a fireman's hat.

Asked by one of the reporters, what her favorite hobby was, Miss Russell said that it was placing shells to her ears and listening to the roar they made. "I've done that ever since I was a small child," she said, "and I'll probably continue to do it for just a longey-ongey time-time." At this point, the patrol wagon drove up and she was escorted back to jail.

Maysie Maudlin, the hot sketch from the haberdashery counter, sent us this little shot of herself and himself in a quiet game of Heavy, Heavy, Hangs Over Thy Head What Shall This Fine Thing Do? Fine or Superfine? Superfine. You have to go over to the other side of the street and ask the first man that comes along for a car slug. O berry, that's a berry of a thing to make me do . . . I ain't gonna do it. Well then, you can quit the game . . . do you want to be a sissy or somethin? Well alright then. Clippity-Clop, clippity-clop. Go clear over to the other side . . . you ain't only half way. Alright then . . . heck. Now you haf to ask the first man what comes along to give you a car slug and then run back and look for us. THE CENSUS

Abner sat in the parlor feeding the pigs and counting noses. It was quite dark now because they had put the lamp in the stove in order to find out where the fire was. Abner was thinking of the time when he was small and they had played games together. One game especially he liked, called hopper-scotcher. You crawled in the goldfish bowl and ducked your head under the water and played like an ostrich with its head under the sand. That was ten years before and he was still playing it. He was still in the goldfish bowl and the hogs were eating his little brother so that is all.

CO-ED ATHLETICS

The Athletic Association is not purely an athletic organization, as its name implies. The students look to it for many of their social activities. The first out-of-door entertainment was a treasure hunt on the campus. Similar parties are scheduled for the spring. The first social function was a supper-dance at the college, featured by dancing and special entertainment.

The first Madi Gras Ball was the climax of the Association's social attempts. The identity of the queen was kept secret until the night of the ball. The queen, who was chosen by the student body, was attended by six students who were chosen in the same way.

A sister organization to the Athletic Association is the "D" Club, which, though composed of a very limited number of girls who were awarded letters according to the point system for excellence in one or more sports, or for consistent activity in school athletics, is not in itself an athletic organization. Letter awards were formally made at the Athletic Association's spring banquet.

The work of the Physical Education Department culminated in the "Review of Sports of 1930," presented early in May. It included novel representations of the various physical activities of the year—of golf, skating, winter sports, horseback riding, tennis, archery, volleyball, basketball, baseball, gymnastics, and tap dancing. Each subject was treated in a decidedly original, unique way.

performance in "Sunup," and Damian Flynn, who is known at his early age as a veteran actor, convulsed a packed house with their interpretations of the prize fighter's manager and the young millionaire roles, respectively. They were aided with some spirited playing by Francis Maguire, Mary Alice Gillin, and a diminutive Prep lad, John Fogarty. This play was the high spot of the season and judging from the amount of outside inquiry, it seemed that the Creighton Players had created a demand for the Gleason comedy throughout the state. "Is Zat So" was presented at the Knights of Columbus auditorium December 18. Others in the cast were Lyle F. O'Rourke, Gene Mari Vani, W. Edwin Davis, Cecil Snyder, Doris Adkins, Hymen Shrier, Ralph H. Gross, Irene Glazik, and Richard Homan.

In February, Bayard Veiller's "The Thirteenth Chair" was selected as the closing pre-Lenten vehicle for the Creighton Players. This has been known for years as one of the successful and deathless mystery plays of the past decade. But it is a play that calls for deft and experienced players, even though it be put on by amateurs. The cast was particularly remarkable in the fact that it brought four members from the College of Saint Mary's into the ranks of the Creighton Players for the first time since that school's affiliation with the University in 1929. Marie Catherine Oliverius, a St. Mary's senior, carried the fascinating role of the lovable old faking medium, Rosalie LaGrange. Lawrence Krell, vice president of the Players, made his final appearance with the Creighton Players as the detective. Maurice Alperin was the murdered Edward Wales, and Mary Emilie Flynn, St. Mary's senior, the suspected Helen O'Neill. Donald Holley acted the important role of Roscoe Crosby, in whose home the murder was committed and solved. The two other St. Mary's girls were Adelaide O'Keefe and Vivian Heffernan. Catherine Gibbons, Duchesne senior, played Helen Trent, while William Edwin Davis played the villain, Philip Mason. Others in the cast were Walter McEveny, Wilbur Warner, Doris Vivian Adkins, Bernard A. Martin, Louis James Grant, Halbert Chestal Chase, and Mary Bernadine Reilly.

The one-act play, "Box and Cox," by James Morton Madison, was the piece de resistance entered by the Creighton Players in the Theatre Tournament at Northwestern University. The cast was composed of Damian Flynn as "Cox," Lawrence Welch as "Box," and Marie Oliverius as "Mrs. Bouncer." The play was performed locally at St. Mary's, St. Catherine's hospital, St. Joseph's hospital, and the varsity auditorium all in one week before departing for Chicago. A packed house greeted the performance at the auditorium and judging from the hearty laughs it elicited over the quaint century-old lines, its burlesquing by the superb acting of Flynn and Welch, put it in the "little hit" class.

When the Players playd it in the tournament at Evanston, it was apparent that it was not strong enough to compete with the better one-act plays, despite the fine cast that Father Herbers selected for it, and failed to rate a place. However, the superb playing of Flynn did not go unnoticed, as he was awarded the E. H. Sothern medal for the best individual acting in the entire tourney. This was the only major prize that the Players did not collect last year when they walked away with the contest, taking the cups for the best directed play, the best all-around play, and the cash award of $150.

Tennis Tournament

REVIVED after an absence from the campus for some time, the tennis tournament, as planned by J. V. "Duce" Belford, should reveal considerable talent of such caliber that the Bluejays can be represented in the Missouri Valley Conference tennis circles in the future.

Winners of the singles and doubles will receive gold medals, while those in the runner-up position will be entitled to silver medals.

Among the entries are Louis Gruenther, one of the best young players in Omaha and for two successive years Nebraska Interscholastic singles champ. Leo Cassidy, team-mate of Gruenther at Prep, is another entrant. He is the municipal court champion of 1929. Nate Cutler and Jimmy Gleason are other ranking junior stars of Omaha who shall strive for first honors. From Kansas City there is Howard Loschke and Charles Lavery. The former is the muny champion of his home town and together this pair holds the Kansas state doubles title.

in the semi-final match that was easily the feature game of the tournament. The scores of the Stalmaster-Epstein battle were 16-21, 21-15 and 21-12. The fray was bitterly contested and it was just a question of which one of the men would crack first.

Stalmaster and Blacker defeated the Mahoney-McDermott combination in the finals of the doubles play, by scores of 21-14 and 21-9. A peculiar feature of the winning pair was the fact that they were both left-handed, a rather odd combination in handball. Mahoney is also a southpaw, thus making three portsiders on the court at one time. At the outset of the tournament Mahoney and McDermott were not given much consideration but as the meet progressed it became apparent that they would have to be seriously reckoned with.

for the various events were lowered considerably, and a great improvement in form was noticed.

The third meet of the season was against Drake at Creighton, but the Champs proved equally strong to overshadow the steady improvement of the Jays, the score remaining the same as in the previous meet.

The final meet was again held at Des Moines, the occasion being the annual Missouri Valley Conference meet in which five teams competed. Washington U. won first place, presenting a strong and well balanced team winning easily over all contestants. Creighton presented a formidable contingent of earnest and willing swimmers, and Coach Wendell expressed his satisfaction at their efforts, since the records they made were the lowest of the year.

Thus ended the firts season of swimming for the Hilltoppers. They should be given great credit for their efforts. Combined with the experienced swimmers of this year that will report next year, and the strong freshman team that was dveloped this year, Creighton should be ranked near the top rung of the scoring ladder. Of this fact, Coach Wendell is certain, and is looking forward with great anticipation of the opening of the second season.

The princes and princesses are chosen by the Union Board of Governors to represent the departments at the Court of the Creighton King. The choice is based on the selection made by the individual members of the board, each submitting two names.

Guests at the Prom were pleased with the selection of the orchestra which came only after a thorough search of nationally known bands. As a result Kassell, who ranks second to but one orchestra in national popularity, was chosen.

Approximately two hundred and fifty couples attended the dance, making the whole affair a modern silhouette of the upmost in Creighton society. Twenty-five patrons and patronesses were in evidence giving the dance an even more dignified and pompish touch.

Anybody who is interested in the League of Nations or the Better Roads Movement No. 437 should turn to some other interesting page. In this article we take you to the far off land of Rambova where basketball and other games are not played. Rambova is so called because it is settled by the people of Rambova and is situated around the country of Rambova. The people of this colony spend their time memorizing of The Watch On The Rhine and Gray's Elegy. There is no truth to the rumor that these people are ambidexterous. It is all done with wires and with the help of ushers in the varicus theatres. The man on the bicycle, who is the mayor, is Browbeaten the Target who began life as a small child. His best works are stilll unpublished although many believe him to be the man motcrists are always warning you about in the slogan, "Watch Out For The Other Fellow." Browbeaten is the other fellow. For thirteen years he was the leader of the village band until they found out that he couldn't really play the saxophone but was only humming through it. Since that time he has gone out of business and attributes his great success in the

THESE COLLEGE "A NEW COLLEGE SCHEME FOR A TALKIE"

Have you been approached? Not for charity or politics but with the cursed query that follows boys and girls in the higher institution, "And what are you studying in college?"

Personalities, as usual, enter into these things. Mother's sisters and father's brothers are intensely interested. They really want to know just what it is you and I are studying in college. "Medicine" they ask over a glass of cold Schlitz. Or "Law, eh!" with a rising inflection. However, this has nothing to do with the cool stirring drama about to be enacted before your very eyes. It's the tear-drenched disentanglement of what happened to Marvin Forsythe-Smyth, a ruddy-cheeked roisterer of some twenty odd springs, now tutoring at Clapham.

Clapham, as you have probably forgotten, is the typical "movie" college. Just a big party, every lad a wavy-haired Adonis and the co-eds; beautiful, shrill voiced, limber-limbed hottentots, are sprinkled throughout a heavenly shaded campus. Every professor in the place has snow-white hair and shell-rimmed glasses. Am I forgetting the prof's beautiful female child? Not on your life! She'll be along now.

Marvin is just descending the carrara-marbled stair-case of the Arts college. To look upon Marvin for the first time is somewhat of a disappointment. Rather a trifle peaked is our Marvin. He has just been informed he is ineligible for the Clapham-Bartell game. Forsythe-Smythe is Clapham's white hope. There's nothing he can't do. He doesn't look the athlete. Too slight and too bright!

Old Hodgin, "Squirrel" to his beloved students, has just broken the news. Well, he would face the music when he got to the house. The Epsom Numas. Likeable joyboys, handsome, athletic and everyone a millionaire's darling. All except Marvin. He's working his way through school. Hours from 3:00 to 4:00. Gwendolyn is. She smokes after every meal.

"Aw, shucks," says our hero, crestfallen and doubtful, "She wouldn't marry me if I was the last guy in the world."

Chuchu is in love with a fat girl. She isn't terribly fat. Sort of athletically plump. Molly is the babee and indirectly she's related to the janitor of the college.

The curtain rings down and goes up with two minutes to play in the last half of the Clapham-Bartell game. Marvin isn't playing at half. He can't, the old Prof, wouldn't listen to anything about Marvin marrying Gwendolyn.

A gray figure flashes across the field waving a prepaid telegram. It's Pop! The stands go wild. Pop is the fat girl's relative. Everyone knows what's in the telegram. Yep! That's it! It's permission to marry Gwen if he wins the game.

"Put me in, Coach!" screams Marvin. The coach looks hypnotized, but consents.

You know the rest. He wins the game. Marries the girl.

Aw, what's the use. College is college, all over. But the same old problem is creeping in.

STILL LIFE ON "YE QUAINT LOUNGE"

The spasmodic twitter of wrens is beautiful. And a lone tree on a grey road. But for downright art, gentlemen, the Commerce smoking room is supra.

"The Plumber's Nightmare," executed by a master hand, adorns the ceiling. Here is modernism. Running madly across a field of water-stained plaster are big pipes, small pipes, a father pipe, a mother pipe, and a nest of little pipes, cozily tucked in a warm corner. Color, a naive brown, a rustic brown that lends depth and feeling to the picture. There is a general tendency toward steam pipes that is startling.

The effect is picturesque. Not unlike varicose veins and a taffy pull but rather like a Scotch bagpiper's feet. Here again words fail to convey the cunning skill of the master of the pipes.

"He knew his pipes," said a wag, probably Hugh M. P. Higgins. Enough of this.

The candid comfortable benches. Examination reveals these stalwart, restful lounges narrowly escaped the court house fire. Rather than burn them, the powers that be, donated them to the school. It is fitting to make a plea for the Community Chest at this point. (Adv.)

The walls are done in creme colour that matches the covers of the business law books quite well. And lastly the floor covering. The hand of Portland is evident throughout. Spotted and stained by careless students with their eternal cigarettes and hookahs, the floor still retains a quiet, warm vigor.

The absence of the Anglo water holder, is to the visitor, conspicuous. Rightly so. The quaint brass receptacle is lacking. In this respect, the Lounge, as the students fondly call it, fails of its promise.

May we extend an invitation to visit this charming art study at your earliest convenience

Dear Berg: We have read your stuff and we want to ask you a question. Is it the proper thing to go to a dance with four young ladies or should you pay your own way in?

Answer: According to the last press notices the United States ranks third in size of navies.

"Give us a spot in your show, Mr. Ziegfeld!" Last year two people were seen to smile at this stuff and so the powers that be thought that if two lives were made better and happier by reading worthwhile literature, why no telling how many more hearts would grow lighter every time this splendid publication was issued. Well, all I know is what I learned in the psychopathic ward and here goes for a glimpse into the home of fun-loving Al Splivens.

Friends, Al was the kind of boy folks speak of in hushed voices. He was a college freshman. Than which there is nothing worse. Al had a rough idea that college was a big place to have a big time. Well, take it from the Grand Old Man of the accounting class it's no such thing. Colleges were built for a definite purpose and if you don't know what that purpose is, give me a ring, I'm never home.

Al didn't know what college training meant. The first thing that dazed him was the lights of the big city. Then paying out his father's hard-earned tuition money seemed to get a half Nelson on him. And finally to find out that all the books he'd bought from "well wishers" weren't being used this year, just about ruined Al for good. Al found that Almond hair dressing made inroads into one's vitality. And learing how to smoke isn't a pleasureable pastime for neophytes in the nicotine kingdom. So we ring the curtain down on the first act.

Al was lucky. His eye fell on a column in a paper that struck him by its odd title. He read, drinking in every drop of the morsels of beautiful prose and then folded the paper and threw it in the fire. Ambition glimmered in his good right eye; his chest swelled like the three-masted schooner "Jessica Nautica" coming into Boston laden with precious cargo in the teeth of a nor'wester. (If this don't read like Jack London I'm a ducky.)

"If people can write marvelous masterpieces like that, I too, can do something," said Al Spivens from Talhassee.

Al's coming along fine now, buttons up whenever he sees an upperclassman, nods politely to the professors and has even been heard to ask questions in class.

Let this serve as a guidepost to you all. Read wisely and well and if you should feel like a little light humor is in keeping, spurn college magazines

Dear Berg: Can you tell me what the last line to the following poem is. We have got all but the last line and we feel that it is not complete without the last line:

Roses Are Red, Violets Are Blue
Sugar Is Sweet, And So Are
You (what is the rest of this last line?)
Answer: I think that probably the trouble is that this young lady would like it if you went up to the door instead of honking your horn out in the street.

IN the production of a university annual there is an invariable characteristic always shown by the editor that he is alone responsible if the said production does not materialize, and if anything should happen to the book. Such an egotistical view might be excused inasmuch as it has been said that such is the editor's privilege. However, to obtain this vaulted opinion it has been necessary that the co-operation, advice, suggestion, aid and criticism of many persons be obtained. Such was received and given and our endless thanks and appreciation is hereby stated.

The staff—their aid was indispensible.

From the administration—the deans of the various departments of the University and their secretaries, Mother Deming at Duchesne, Sister Lavina at Saint Joseph's Hospital, Sister Mary John at Saint Catherine's Hospital, Sister Constance and Sister Mary Mark at the College of Saint Mary; the presidents of all the classes in every department, the Misses Pauline Craney, Marie Bell, Gertrude Gross, Florence and Margaret Sullivan, and the faculties of the University—aid and co-operation of a most gracious nature was received, and we are heartily thankful.

To the following artisans—Frank W. Mawicke of the Pontiac Engraving and Electrotype Company and his staff of artists who created the color work in the book, H. Matsuo of Matsuo Studio and his efficient staff, Nat L. Dewell, Samuel B. Babcock of the Weber-McCrea Company and his artist, Frank McGrath, who designed the cover, and Harry Burkley, Jr., of the Burkley Envelope and Printing Company and his large staff, all of whom worked so hard to print the best Blue-Jay possible, and especially among this number are the Messrs. Harry Burkley, Sr., Robert W. Burkley, Carl Cook, Charles Dagg, Carl Kornmesser and Ray Lawrence —we owe an everlasting debt of gratitude.

Also to Matt Barr of the University of Southern California, Ted Carpenter of Marquette University, Albert J. Porporato, Charles McDonald, Robert Evans, F. E. Pellegrin, Helen Tegeder, Majors G. R. Hicks and H. Houghland, U. S. A., and members of the Board of Governors, we are indebted for invaluable assistance.

And to Edward D. Murphy and the Reverend J. A. Herbers, S. J., we are appreciative for the help and advice and energies in carrying us through several gloomy and difficult situations.

And then to the student body of the University and its representatives we are thankful for the faith they bestowed upon us.
